Enjoy the peaceful Canals in comfortable style with Hoseasons.

Take a canal holiday and you take a voyage back in time. Back to a time when the pace of life was less hurried; away from the roar of the cities, the traffic jams and the bustle of modern living.

Britain's inland waterways are a network of quiet water highways carrying you through the countryside, bringing you close to the haunts of heron and kingfisher, of fox and badger.

You climb hills by flights of locks, or pass through them by cool tunnels. Valleys you cross by lofty embankments or soaring aqueducts.

Canals wend their way through quiet country villages where you can shop or just pass the time of day with the locals. Waterside inns—once the overnight stops of the working boatmen—now wait for you to moor your cruiser by their door and call for a pleasant drink or a meal. If a waterway passes through a town or city, it does it secretly, yet often within a stone's throw of the main shopping centre.

A holiday on Britain's canals is what you want to make it. If you want to cruise as far as possible, you can cover a lot of waterway—even at 4 m.p.h. Or maybe you just like to potter. Operating locks is a mild exercise and you will soon find that the children are anxiously looking out for the next one.

There is time to see everything but no time to get bored as a new scene awaits you around every bend. The choice is yours; and Hoseasons offer you an unrivalled choice of boats and waterways.

Most of the canals were built and the rivers made navigable over 150 years ago, in an era when great engineers, such as Brindley, Telford and Rennie, combined architectural beauty with functional design. The bricks and stones of their buildings, locks and aqueducts have mellowed with time to become almost a part of nature itself. Waterways have their own special engineering wonders; the famous Pontcysyllte and Chirk Aqueducts; Harecastle and Blisworth Tunnels; the Bingley Five Rise, Foxton and Hatton flights of locks; the great embankment at Burnley; and of course the unique Anderton Lift, which lowers your boat 50 feet from the Trent & Mersey to the River Weaver below.

The Great Anderton Lift—one of the wonders of the Canals.

Occasionally the rhythmic beat of a heavy diesel engine may still herald the appearance around the next bend of a narrowboat, resplendent in its traditional livery of gaily painted roses and castles—one of Britain's last surviving folk arts. It's still possible to buy a decorated can or handbowl from a canalside shop as a souvenir of your holiday. On the wide waterways of the North East, coal is still transported by bluff-bowed barges.

Waterways cover the country. From the magnificent trans-Pennine Leeds & Liverpool and the remote Lancaster in the north to the River Wey in the south. The Llangollen takes you into the Welsh Hills in the west, with the Shropshire Union carrying you southwards to the Midlands, the Staffs & Worcester and the Rivers Severn & Avon; or northwards to Cheshire, the Macclesfield and the Peak Forest. The Midland counties are a maze of waterways; Birmingham is reputed to have more canals than Venice. Apart from allowing you to cruise all around the middle of England, they lead on southwards to London via the Grand Union, or Oxford and the Thames. In the East Midlands the Leicester line of the Grand Union, the Soar and the Trent & Mersey converge at the Trent to carry you on to Yorkshire, Lincolnshire and the North East.

To help you choose.

To help you choose your boat and start point you'll find the boats in this section are divided in area groups. This map gives you the area groups. Within the groups, boats are listed in ascending size order. You'll see how well placed Hoseasons boatyard bases are to give you a wide choice of routes. Remember—your choice of start point in no way restricts you to that area. It's just a convenient way of presenting the wide range of Hoseasons Canal Cruisers.

A major advantage of our rivers and canals is that most of them are in a connected system, allowing you to make an out and return cruise or one of the circle routes. Look at the larger map overleaf. It shows you the whole of the canal network available to you. The Waterways are so widespread that a book the size of this brochure would be needed to list the many points of interest along their banks of within easy distance of your cruise. Mile-by-mile detail guides are available ("The Canals Book" is a good example) to ensure that you need not miss a single stately home, castle, cathedral, pub or shop.

Hoseasons Narrowboats are licenced for all British Waterways Board cruising waters, unless shown otherwise in the boat descriptions additional licences are required for other waterways such as the Upper & Lower Avon, Stratford Canal, River Nene, River Thames and River Ouse.

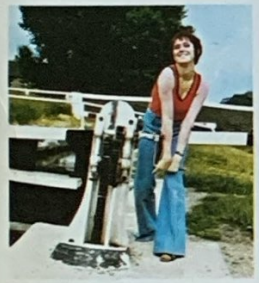
Narrowboat luxury

In complete contrast to the history and tradition of the canals is your Hoseasons Canal Cruiser. You'll find it custom-built for your comfort with modern-day fitting and furnishings. The Narrowboat is designed to fit neatly into the 7 ft. wide locks and means that all of the Canal system is open to you.

Many of the boats feature the popular traditional-shaped hull with vertical topsides and very flat bottom section and have a large tiller for easy steering.

Wide-beam cruisers

Space and luxury are also available to you in wide-beam boats. Look out for the 'wide beam' flash in this section. There's 'wide beam' boats from the Severn & Avon area (page 131) and the L & L Canal (page 102). And don't forget they are on the Lancaster Canal (page 103) as well.



Locks are part and parcel of the fun of boating on the Canals. Even the most regular users still enjoy working through them. The step-by-step instructions and drawings we provide you with will show you how they work.

Typical Canal Cruiser interiors—pullman berths and modern galley.

How far can you cruise in a day?

Locks are sometimes in bunches, and sometimes well spread. So it is necessary to measure your travel by a combination of locks and miles.

You'll find it takes roughly the same time to do a lock as to go 1 mile. So your journey is best measured on lock-miles. Just add the number of locks to the number of miles. Average your speed at 4 lock-miles an hour. This way in 5 hours you'll cover 20 lock-miles. This could be 20 miles with no locks, or 10 miles with 10 locks. If you count the locks and miles on your Canal map you'll get a surprisingly accurate arrival time for each day of your intended cruise.

CANALS & RIVERS – Your choice of 50 Start Points on 1500 miles of Canals and Rivers

To simplify the choosing of your Hoseasons Cruiser, we have listed each size of boat operating from particular start-points in convenient area-groups. A brief description introduces each group.
However, a look at the general map of the waterways will show you that (except for the Lancaster Canal) all the rivers and canals—including the Rivers Thames and Wey—are connected. So you can travel from your start-point through as many areas—or miles of waterway—that your holiday time allows. With so many start-points available you'll see that Hoseasons offer you the widest choice of 'out-and-home' or 'circular' cruises possible.
Remember—your choice of start-point in no way restricts you. The whole of the navigable Canal Network of over 1500 miles is available to you.

The Trans-Pennine Waterways

The waterways of the northern counties cross the country from east to west over England's mountain backbone—the Pennines. From Lancashire's Mersey valley the magnificent Leeds & Liverpool Trans-Pennine Canal climbs steadily over the hills to drop dramatically into Yorkshire's dales and join the network of river navigations radiating from the Humber.
These waterways, with their broad locks, have a special attraction of their own. There can be no greater variety of cruising country than the 127 miles of the Leeds & Liverpool; from glimpses of busy Lancashire to the remote beauty of the high Pennines.
Beyond Leeds the Aire & Calder takes your cruiser further into Yorkshire to link up with the Sheffield & South Yorkshire and the Calder & Hebble—climbing once again through woodland and parkland into the hills. Those with two weeks to spend in Yorkshire can take in the River Ouse, cruising to York and Ripon.
The hills and dales of Lancashire and Yorkshire are open to you from Hoseasons start points in both counties.

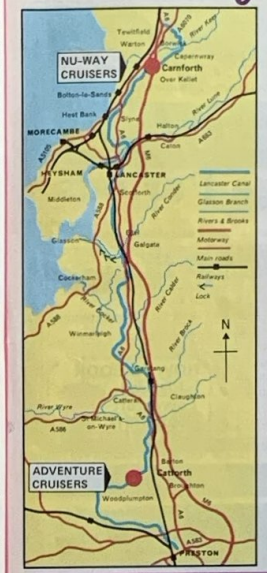
The lovely Lancaster Canal



In the north-west corner of rural Lancashire—almost in the shadow of the Lake District—you'll find the lovely Lancaster Canal. Detached from the main waterway network, its wide, lock-free mainline heads north from Preston for 43 miles to the head of navigation at Tewitfield, north of Carnforth. You have a choice of two start points at either end of the waterway; perfect for a leisurely cruise over the entire length of the Lancaster Canal. If you are adventurous, you may like to tackle the six locks of the Glasson Branch which gives the canal access to the sea at its own mini port of Glasson Dock.

You'll find the attractions of the Lancaster Canal many and varied.

The lock-free cruising; its short branch to Glasson Dock; and the complete freedom from commercial traffic makes it an ideal choice for beginners.

Adventure Cruisers have Row Dinghies for hire at £8 per week. Please book direct with Boatyard.

The Cheshire Ring Canals

A ring of water highways formed by the Bridgewater, Trent & Mersey, Macclesfield, Peak Forest, Ashton and Rochdale Canals encircle the county of Cheshire. Hoseasons have a number of start points spaced conveniently on this circuit and ideally placed for a round trip or cruising on the adjacent waterways.

Connected to the ring and giving a wide choice of linked routes are the Leeds & Liverpool the Trent & Mersey, the River Weaver—via the unique Anderton Boat Lift—and the Shropshire Union system southwards to the Midlands and westwards to Chester and Llangollen.

Except for a brief passage through bustling Manchester, the ring is almost entirely rural; with wide views of the lush Cheshire countryside and an impressive climb up towards the Potteries and onwards into the foothills of the Peak District. An extra toll is payable when navigating the privately-owned Rochdale Canal in Manchester.

The 98 miles of the ring are steeped in waterway history; on the Trent & Mersey are Britain's first canal tunnels and the Bridgewater itself was of course the pioneer success story of the canal era. There's no better place to start your Hoseasons holiday than this cradle of canal history.

The Beautiful English Shires

Since the days of the Romans and the Vikings the River Trent has been one of Britain's great water highways. From Nottingham to the Humber the lower section of this historic navigation is the vital link between the Midlands canals and the sea.

At Trent Junction is a waterway crossroads with the River Soar section of the Grand Union heading southwards towards Leicester and the Erewash Canal leading northwards to Langley Mill. A few miles above this is the head of the Trent Navigation and its junction with the Trent & Mersey Canal at Derwent Mouth.

Lower down the river's course the Chesterfield Canal strikes off westwards into the Nottinghamshire countryside and the estates of the Dukeries; while eastwards from Torksey is the ancient Roman navigation of the Fossdyke. At Lincoln this joins the River Witham forming a through route across Lincolnshire to the Wash at Boston.

The three Hoseasons start points in this area are well spaced to cover its waterways and the adjoining rivers and canals.

The lower Trent and its adjoining waterways are wide and pretty with a regional character of their own. They take you to historic towns and cities such as Newark, Boston, Lincoln and Nottingham. Cruise along the waterways of the English Shires and discover another England.

The Heart of England

The greatest mileage of Britain's narrow canals lie in the Midlands—the true heart of England. All the main waterway routes radiate from Birmingham; and within the city's own Birmingham Canal Navigations—spreading outwards towards Wolverhampton—are reputed to be more miles of canal than in Venice.

Beyond this start the great north-south and east-west trunk routes of the canal transport era. Once busy with cargo-carrying narrow boats, but now tranquil highways for your holiday pleasure.

Hoseasons' start points are spread across this great Midland network from Birmingham and Wolverhampton north-eastwards towards the Trent Valley. Note how well-placed they are on the major canals and strategically located on or near the main canal junctions, offering a wide choice of alternative routes and round trips.

Telford's great Shropshire Union takes you northwards to Market Drayton, Llangollen and Cheshire; while two of Brindley's great waterways—the Staffs & Worcester and the Trent & Mersey—take you westwards to Stourport and the Severn, northwards to the Potteries and the Caldon Canal, or eastwards to the Trent. The Coventry Canal links up with the major routes to the Thames, while south from Birmingham is Stratford and the Avon.

Find the real heart of England aboard a Hoseasons' canal cruiser on the Midlands waterways.

The Oxford and Grand Union

The canal builders constructed two great competing waterways from the Midlands to the Thames: the standard-guage Oxford Canal, linking Coventry with Oxford via Rugby and Banbury, and the Grand Union; an impressive wide-locked amalgamation of earlier canals from Birmingham directly to London—with a narrower section thrusting northwards into Leicestershire; and a link with the River Nene at Northampton.
Coventry, its cathedral and canal, are linked to the middle of the Grand Union at Braunston by the lovely northern section of the Oxford Canal. At nearby Napton the southern Oxford—rated by many as one of England's most beautiful canals—turns southwards, via Banbury Cross and mellow Cotswold stone villages, to the Thames and that historic centre of learning—Oxford.
The Grand Union is truly a grand waterway: leaving Birmingham it passes through rural Warwickshire, with the Knowle and Hatton flights of locks, calls at quaint Stoke Bruerne—the home of the Waterways Museum—to climb to its summit in the Chilterns. Descending to the Thames, you can cruise into the capital itself, past Regents Park Zoo. These two great waterways have many links with other waterways—the B.C.N., the Worcester & Birmingham, the Grand Union's own northern section, via Foxton to the River Soar, the Coventry Canal, the lovely River Nene to Peterborough and the Stratford Canal to the Avon. One of the finest of round cruises is the great circle via the two canals and the Thames. The Hoseasons agency bases are well spaced to give you a wide choice of start-points and there are bases in Oxford itself listed in our Thames-based Narrow-boats section.

The Rivers and Canals of the Severn & Avon area

Your Hoseasons boatyards in the valleys of the Rivers Severn and Avon offer you an unrivalled choice of river and canal cruising.

From your base by narrowboat you can explore the many historic towns and cities in which this lovely area abounds. These include Worcester with its world-famous porcelain factory, Tewkesbury, Stourport and Stratford upon Avon. You can still find the caves that were once inhabited by river pirates and enjoy a drink in one of the ancient inns where smuggling was once rife.

The waterways themselves vary so much in scenery and character. The River Severn with its light but varied traffic of sea-going yachts, and the Staffs & Worcester Canal with its sandstone cliffs and wooded hills—the five tunnels and the open countryside of the Worcester-Birmingham Canal; the gentle meanders of the River Avon—all go to make up the finest choice of possible cruises.

Super wide-beam boats too!

Now a superb fleet of wide-beam boats are available to you from Upton (see page 131). They can fully cover both great rivers from Sharpness to Stourport-on-Severn, and to Evesham-on-Avon.

On a fortnight's holiday the enterprising narrowboat crew can choose one of several circular routes. This could include the Avon ring, a journey which includes four canals and two rivers and has every feature such as locks, tunnels and aqueducts which our waterways are so famous for.

Cruise the Rivers Severn, Avon and Sharpness Canal

The River Severn is one of Britain's finest and, together with the Sharpness Ship Canal and River Avon, offers a fascinating holiday cruising experience.
Your River Severn cruising includes the ancient city of Worcester with its magnificent Cathedral and world-famous Porcelain factory, Tewkesbury with its lovely Abbey, and the Cathedral City of Gloucester. Severe Lock on the Severn just north of Worcester has taken First Prize in the national Championship for the 'Best Kept Lock in the whole of Britain' for four of the last seven years.
The Lower Avon from Tewkesbury to Evesham offers an unrivalled cruise through the lovely Vale of Evesham, and the Sharpness Ship Canal, being a very wide, elevated waterway, affords excellent views over the countryside and convenient moorings for a visit to the Slimbridge Wildfowl Trust—the largest collection of captive wildfowl in the world.
The new wide-beam luxury craft of Corsair Cruisers provide you with the opportunity to cruise these waterways in superb comfort and style.
Each boat is fully licenced for the whole area.
Cruising range: River Severn, Lower Avon and Sharpness Canal

Into the Welsh Mountains

The complete rural beauty of the 46-mile Llangollen Canal and its spectacular terminus in the hills of Wales, have truly established this waterway as the most popular cruising canal.
Leaving the Shropshire Union main line near Nantwich, it climbs steadily from Cheshire by remote farms; through the lake country around Ellesmere, to cross the Cerrigg and Dee Valleys by the great aqueducts of Chirk and Pontcysyllte.
The premier wonder of the waterways, Pontcysyllte is a monument to the genius of Thomas Telford. A voyage across its 1,000-foot-long narrow cast-iron trough—120 feet above the Dee Valley—is an experience never to be forgotten.
Closely linked waterways are the main line of the Shropshire Union, to historic Chester and Ellesmere Port with the newly-opened Boat Museum, south to Market Drayton and across the Middlewich Branch to the Trent & Mersey and the Cheshire Ring.
The Llangollen is a canal of quiet villages and country towns, such as Whitchurch and Ellesmere; ending at Llangollen itself—world-famous home of the international Musical Eisteddfod. Hoseasons start point along the Llangollen Canal is ideal for your cruise into the Welsh Mountains.

Hoseasons Dial-A-Booking instant service

It's so easy. So safe when you book with Hoseasons

Book by phone.
It's easy. Fast.
Convenient.

We're waiting for your call

Phone us now and you'll get straight through to our booking office with no delay.

That's because we have the latest phone system with direct lines.

This helps you make your phone booking so much easier.

When you phone, remember to have your brochure beside you. You'll need it when quoting the boat you want and the dates you're thinking of taking your holiday.

Free call-box bookings

If you aren't on the phone at home don't worry. Why not take advantage of our special FREE call-box Phone Service. It operates between 6 pm and 9 pm on weekdays or between 10 am and 8 pm on Saturdays and Sundays up to the 31st of March 1977.

Just call your operator and ask for a 'transfer charge' call to the appropriate number for your boating holiday. It won't cost you a penny so long as you phone the right number and the right time.

This service applies to call-boxes only–and does not apply to private or business phones.

Come up and see us

Our Head Office is in Bridge Road, on the Oulton Broad side of Lowestoft, close to the Wherry Hotel.

If you live close by, or your journey takes you past our door, why not drop in. Not open to personal callers on Sundays, or Saturday afternoons during the period November to end of May.

Come along to our big stand at the Boat Show, Earls Court 6th to 16th January. And step aboard one of the latest Hoseasons luxury craft on show.

You can book your holiday right there and then.

Last minute bookings

It's never too late to book a holiday, provided the boat you want hasn't sailed! That's the key. To be sure of the boat and holiday you want it really does pay to book early.

But if you have to make a last-minute booking don't hesitate to ring us. We will always do our best to help you. Vacancies do occur through cancellations etc., so even if you want a boat at 24-hours notice there is a chance we may be able to book one for you.

Cancellation Plan

As you will have seen from the Conditions of Hire you as hirer are responsible for the full hire of your boat even if you are not able to take possession. This is only a fair and reasonable safeguard for the owners. To help you meet these conditions you are covered by Hoseasons under their Cancellation Plan which offers you the following important benefits:

1 If you are forced to cancel prior to your holiday because of illness, death, injury, or maternity, or illness of any member of your party, Witness-Call, or Jury service by you or your wife, or because of your own redundancy (qualifying for payment under the Redundancy Payment Act 1965) or death, or serious injury, or illness of a close relative and this can be substantiated, and has arisen since you made the booking, then you will no longer be liable for the balance of hire monies due on your booking. To qualify you must notify us in writing immediately the circumstances arise. Our acknowledgement in writing to you will be your evidence of our having received your notification.

This cover extends to provide you with a refund of your balance-of-hire if such qualifying circumstances arise before you leave home for your holiday, and where you have already paid your balance-of-hire in advance.

2 And also provided Hoseasons receive written notice from you more than 49 days before your holiday is due to start, and you are cancelling for one of the reasons given in the previous paragraph your booking deposit will be returned to you in full.

3 If we receive written notice from you 49 days or less before the start of your holiday, and provided you are cancelling for one of the qualifying reasons one-half of the deposit you have paid will be refunded if we relet for the full period of your holiday.

4 If you cancel for circumstances not covered in this scheme, and we receive notice from you in writing more than 59 days before you are due to start your holiday then you only forfeit your booking deposit.

But if we receive notice to cancel from you 59 days or less before you're due to start your holiday and your reason for cancelling isn't one of the qualifying ones you forfeit your booking deposit and you'll be responsible for the payment of the balance of hire if we don't relet.

The decision of Hoseasons on all claims will be final.

Close relative means the husband, wife, father, mother, father-in-law, mother-in-law, brother, sister, child or dependant of person in whose name the booking is made.*
