Community Invited to Homelessness and Coordinated Access Virtual Forum

Bruce and Grey Counties will host a virtual Homelessness and Coordinated Access Community Forum on November 12, 6:30 – 8:00 p.m. inviting community members to learn about local efforts to address homelessness and connect people with housing supports. The forum will explore current homelessness challenges in Grey Bruce and discuss coordinated solutions. Attendees will hear from Grey County, Bruce County, YMCA Owen Sound Grey Bruce staff, and community partners.

"Homelessness is a complex issue that requires collaboration across counties, agencies, and the community," said Tina Metcalfe, director of human services, Bruce County. "By working together, we can better connect individuals and families to the right supports at the right time and create pathways to stable housing."

The Grey Bruce Community Safety and Well-Being Planning initiative is the event host and sponsor. The forum will feature presentations and discussions on a range of critical topics, including:

- Prevention supports and early intervention services
- Emergency shelter programs and crisis response
- Encampment outreach and community safety approaches
- Transitional and supportive housing options
- Coordinated Access and the By-Name List system

"This forum is an opportunity for our community to come together, learn about the coordinated efforts underway, and be part of the conversation on how we can collectively address homelessness," said Anne Marie Shaw, director of community services, Grey County. "We value community input and encourage everyone to participate, ask questions, and help shape our shared path forward."

Virtual meeting link will be emailed to registered participants one week before the forum

Participation is free, but you must register in advance. Community members are encouraged to submit questions online and register before October 31, 2025. www.grey.ca

Cybersecurity:

The New Business Essential for Small Enterprises

by Digital Main Street | October 21, 2025 |

In today's digital economy, small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs) rely on technology more than ever to reach customers, manage operations, and compete in a rapidly changing marketplace. From online storefronts and digital marketing to cloud-based systems and electronic payments, technology has levelled the playing field for entrepreneurs across Canada. But this digital dependence comes with an underappreciated risk: cyberattacks.

Even a single incident can lead to financial loss, reputational damage, and costly downtime. According to a survey conducted by the Insurance Bureau of Canada, 41% of small businesses that ever suffered a cyber attack reported that it cost them at least $100,000 - not to mention the emotional toll of recovering from the disruption.

The growing need for digital resilience

As businesses adopt digital tools and online transactions, cybercriminals have adapted as well. They often view small enterprises as easy targets, assuming these organizations have fewer safeguards in place. Increasingly, this assumption proves true. Many small business owners rely on personal email accounts, use weak passwords, or skip software updates — simple oversights that can open the door to major security breaches.

Closing the knowledge gap

While awareness of cybersecurity risks is growing, there remains a knowledge gap among small business owners about how to address them. Many entrepreneurs simply don't know where to start. Others assume that robust cybersecurity requires expensive technology or specialized staff. In reality, many of the most effective measures are low-cost and accessible.

This is where collaborative programs and educational initiatives play a crucial role. By helping small business owners understand and implement practical steps — from using multi-factor authentication to securing Wi-Fi networks — these programs can make digital protection achievable for everyone, not just large enterprises with IT departments.

Empowering small businesses through collaboration

To help bridge this gap, Digital Main Street, in collaboration with Mastercard, is helping small businesses strengthen their online security. Through this partnership, entrepreneurs can access resources, tools, and training designed to simplify cybersecurity and make it part of everyday business practice.

The initiative offers digital assessments to help business owners identify vulnerabilities, practical guides on how to address them, and online learning modules that build confidence in managing cyber risks. The 'Empowering Businesses to be cyber resilient' is a free course, a course created in partnership with Mastercard, Digital Main Street and The Toronto Association of Business Improvement Areas, is designed to empower small businesses with the tools and knowledge they need to fortify their operations against the growing threat of cybercrime. The on demand course covers topics such as Cybersecurity Basics, Proactive Security, and much more. The goal is not to turn every entrepreneur into a cybersecurity expert, but rather to make cybersecurity feel approachable and actionable.

Practical protection for the digital age

The partnership focuses on practical, everyday solutions that small businesses can implement immediately. Recommendations include using strong passwords and password managers, updating software regularly, setting clear policies for employee access, and backing up data in secure locations.

A stronger, safer digital community

Cybersecurity is no longer optional for small businesses operating in the digital age. As technology continues to evolve, so too must the measures that protect it. For entrepreneurs, the message is clear: building digital resilience isn't just about avoiding risk — it's about ensuring stability, customer trust, and long-term success.

2025 Environmental Sustainability Fund Accepting Applications

The Town of The Blue Mountains invites community organizations to apply for the Town's Environmental Sustainability Fund.

This fund has an allocation of $8,000 that will be split between successful applications that demonstrate a clear goal of advancing environmental sustainability within the Town. There is a maximum of $5,000 available for any single project, meaning the fund will have at least $3,000 remaining for one or more smaller projects if the highest-scoring proposal receives $5,000. To better support smaller projects, applicants no longer need to cover 80% of the project's value from other sources, with a minimum funding request of $1,000.

Past recipients have included Beaver River Watershed Initiative, Beaver Valley Community School, Climate Action Now Network, Georgian Bay Forever, Pollinate TBM, Thornbury Community Gardens and Treetrust TBM. Their projects have included a wide range of project types including education programs, pilot projects, waste diversion initiatives, tree plantings, shoreline cleanups and public events, exemplifying how the Town and community organizations can work alongside one another to foster environmental sustainability and build community connections.

Interested non-profit organizations and community groups wishing to apply must submit their application no later than December 9, 2025, at 11:59 p.m. ET. Georgian Triangle Humane Society Launches its First-ever 50/50 Lottery - $21,130 to date

Every ticket is a chance to fetch a win and give back to pets in need

The Georgian Triangle Humane Society (GTHS) is thrilled to announce the launch of its first-ever 50/50 Lottery, running from October 1st to November 30th, 2025. Supporters across the region have the chance to win big while helping local pets in need.

The winning ticket will be drawn at the GTHS Holiday Open House on December 4th, adding even more excitement to one of the most festive events of the year.

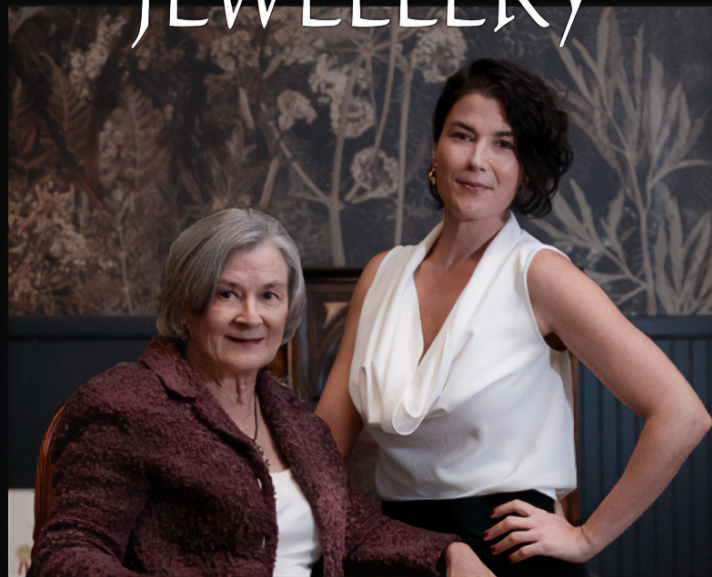

Tickets are available at three price points: 5 tickets for $10, 20 tickets for $25, or 75 tickets for $50, making it fun and affordable for everyone to get involved. With every ticket purchased, participants not only get a shot at the grand prize, but also help provide vital care for pets in South Georgian Bay at a time when support has never been more needed.

"We know our community wants to help, but donor fatigue is real," said Karen Marsh, executive director of the GTHS. "Our first-ever 50/50 Lottery is an accessible, exciting way for people to support the pets and programs they care about. It's fun, engaging, and you could win big -- all while making a meaningful difference for the pets who need us most."

Tickets go on sale on October 1st and will be available online at <https://www.rafflebox.ca/raffle/gths>.
