

Nanoparticles are ultrafine particles with dimensions measured in nanometres (nm). They can range in size from 1 to 100 nm and possess unique physical properties due to their small size. Nanoparticles exist naturally in the environment and can also be created as a result of human activities.

Britannica+4