Yesterday

The school-to-prison pipeline begins in deep social and economic inequalities, and has taken root in schools throughout this country.

The "zero tolerance" policies in schools today are the most extreme form of punishment. They were originally written for the war on drugs in the early 1980s, and later applied to schools.

The School -to-Prison Pipeline is a disturbing national trend. Where in children are funneled out of public schools into the juvenile and criminal justice system. Many of these children have learning disabilities, or a history of poverty, abuse or neglect, and would benefit from additional education and counseling services. Instead they are isolated, punished and pushed out.

My Solution

RESTORATIVE JUSTICE PRACTICES

- Build relationships
- Strive to be respectful to all
- Provide opportunity for equitable dialogue and participatory decision-making
- Involves all relevant stakeholders
- Addresses harms, needs, obligations, and causes of conflict and harm
- Encourages all to take responsibility

Our program seeks to build and strengthen relationships within the community in two constructive ways:

- Encourage public awareness of the injustice that all children face within the educational system as it relates to the pipeline and the judicial process
- Promote policy changes through data accountability and fact-based incidental reporting which serves to support and strengthen the dismantling of the school to prison pipeline in the CSRA!!!

School to Prison Pipeline = Human Trafficking

Tomorrow

END THE SCHOOL TO PRISON PIPELINE

Criminalization of children and youth, excessive and exclusionary school discipline policies, and juvenile justice involvement, push too many children and youth into and/or deeper into - the criminal justice system.

Black students are 4x more likely to be suspended than their white peers

riminal justice system.

Black girls are 10x more likely than white girls to receive discipline referrals
