*mini gobs – these are the size I use for my “party trays” and variety boxes. They are approximately 2-1/2” in diameter and the size you would normally make at home. These will come individually wrapped & labeled. (Silver Dollar Gobs – the bite size ones about the size of a silver dollar – are listed under the ‘Specialty Cookie’ section)

Full-size gobs – these are the larger gobs I sell in local stores and at concession stands around the area. They are also individually wrapped and labeled and are about 3”- 3-1/2” in diameter. I use a cookie scoop but sizes do vary between flavors/batches to how they bake as a finished product.

GOBS-BASIC FLAVORS: Chocolate/Old-Fashioned, Chocolate/PB, Vanilla/Chocolate Cream, Banana/Vanilla, Pumpkin/Cinnamon, Chocolate-Chip/Vanilla (For the Silver Dollar gobs – I keep these simple and only offer Chocolate/Old-Fashioned or Pumpkin/Cinnamon)

GOBS-DELUXE FLAVORS: Snickerdoodle/Cinnamon, Snickerdoodle/Coffee, “Birthday Cake”, Vanilla/Lemon Curd, “Black Forest”, Pumpkin/Cream Cheese, “Banana-Walnut”, “Butterfinger Crunch”, “Snickers”... flavors always vary. Ask for your favorites.

CRUFFLES & CAKE POPS – I listed my most popular flavors for weddings & parties above, but if you want a different flavor of cake – PLEASE ASK! These are fully baked cake (flavor above selected), that I mix with my buttercream frosting. I roll them into cake-balls, dip them in chocolate (white, colored or milk chocolate) and add sprinkles or sanding sugar to match the occasion. The difference between the two are as follows: for a CRUFFLE, the cake-ball is dipped, sprinkled and put into mini cupcake liners (like a bon-bon) – so they look great on a cookie tray/cookie table to grab and go. A CAKEPOP is the same cake-ball but pushed onto a lollipop stick – dipped and sprinkled - and usually individually wrapped and sealed (like at Starbucks).
