

Status, Standing, and the Strawman: Why the Court Thinks You're a Ghost

Welcome 🍷

You've been walking into courtrooms, signing contracts, and paying "debts" thinking you're a living soul with rights. The reality? To the system, you're a ghost. You are a legal phantom, a "vassal" of a bankrupt corporate entity, and until you understand Status, Standing, and Agency, you're just playing a game where the rules were written to make sure you lose.

Let's strip away the fluff and get into the actual law.

THE DEFINITION OF STATUS: WHO DO THEY THINK YOU ARE?

According to Black's Law Dictionary, the status of a person is their "legal position or condition." This isn't about how you feel; it's about how you are categorized by the state.

Think about a woman during a "decree Nissi" in a divorce. Before that decree is made absolute, her status is still that of a married woman. She has the same legal rights, liabilities, and disabilities as any other married woman. Her status determines what rules apply to her.

Now, apply this to yourself. The term "status" is chiefly applied to:

1. Persons under a disability.
2. Persons who have a "peculiar condition" that prevents general law from applying to them the same way it applies to "ordinary" people.

In the case of Barney vs. Tallot, we see that status is a collection of rights, duties, capacities, and incapacities. Your status determines what you are entitled to and what you are responsible for.

THE TRAP: If you are operating as an agent for a corporate legal entity under a state of bankruptcy, you are bound by the duties of that bankruptcy. You cannot walk into a court as a "vassal" of the bankruptcy and then try to claim rights secured by the Constitution of the Republic. This is exactly why judges threaten you with contempt when you bring up the Constitution. You aren't the "person" entitled to those rights because of your Status.

UNDERSTANDING STANDING: THE THREE PILLARS OF COURT ACCESS

If you don't have Standing, the court doesn't have to listen to a word you say. Standing is what gives you the ability to present yourself. If you aren't a party to the suit, a witness, or an attorney, you are a stranger to the court.

To have standing, you must meet three strict requirements:

1. Injury in Fact

You must have suffered an "invasion of a legally protected interest." This can't be a "maybe" or a "what if." It must be:

- Concrete and particularized.
- Actual or imminent.
- Not hypothetical or abstract.

Whether the injury is economic or non-economic, it must be real. If there is no injury, there is no case.

2. Causation

There has to be a "causal connection" between your injury and the conduct you're complaining about. The injury must be "fairly traceable" to the defendant. If a third party caused the mess and they aren't in the room, you lack the causation needed to pin it on the person standing in front of the judge.

3. Redressability

This is the big one. It must be likely: not just speculative: that a favorable court decision will actually fix (redress) the injury. If the court can't solve the problem, they won't hear the case.

THE MAVERICK APPROACH: When you understand standing, you realize that half the people suing you don't actually have the right to be there. They can't prove the injury, and they can't prove they are the ones who suffered it. Check out how we handle these situations at Don Kilam on Maverick Approach.

THE AGENCY TRAP: THE WORLD OF THE DEAD

We live in a world of corporate entities. Corporations, trusts, and "Persons" (in the legal sense) are dead. They are paper fictions. Because a piece of paper can't talk, sign a check, or go to jail, it needs an Agent.

An Agency relationship is created when one party (the Principal) delegates authority to another (the Agent) to handle business or property.

In the eyes of the law, there is a "dead entity" with a name that looks just like yours: the ALL CAPS STRAWMAN. Because that entity is "dead," the system presumes YOU are the registered agent for it. They are holding the living man or woman responsible for the liabilities of the dead corporate fiction.

They've selected you to be the one who pays the bills for a dead entity. If you don't know how to sever this relationship or claim ownership of the entity, you're just a "representative" taking the hits for a principal that doesn't even exist in the real world.

ATTORNEYS: THE BOUNTY HUNTERS OF THE DEAD

Let's look at the word "Atorn." It's a verb. To atorn means:

1. To turn over money, rent, or goods to another.
2. To assign a specific function or service to an agent.

So, what is an Attorney?

- Definition 1: An agent authorized to act for another.
- Definition 2: A person qualified by a court to provide legal services.

When you see the word attorney, you are looking at an agent. An Attorney-in-Fact is even more specific: they are a proxy, a surrogate, or a legal representative.

If you sign your name as "Attorney-in-Fact" for your corporate entity, you are signaling that you are the one with the Power of Attorney. Most people see the word "Attorney" and think "Lawyer." They make an assumption. Let them. Your signature as an attorney-in-fact is 100% lawful and accurate, provided you have the documents to back up your status as the controller of the estate.

THE PRIVATIZATION OF THE REPUBLIC (HJR 192)

Have you ever wondered why we don't use real money anymore? It comes down to Denationalization: the act of changing a government-run firm into a private sector firm. This is also known as privatization.

The Republic form of government was essentially "privatized." Under House Joint Resolution 192 (HJR 192), the obligation to "pay" debts with gold was removed because the government went bankrupt. In exchange, the "citizens" were granted Equity.

Your equity was released from the obligation of paying debts. Now, we don't pay; we discharge liabilities using credit instruments. You are the original grantor and issuer of credit. You are the "Real Deal."

However, because you haven't claimed your position as the Beneficiary, the system creates "derivative investments" using your ALL CAPS name. They trade bonds in your name while you sit in the corner, unaware that the "Constructive Trust" exists.

THE VACANT OFFICE: WHY YOU ARE DEEMED INCOMPETENT

Because you haven't stood up and claimed your estate, the law deems your office "vacant." You are treated as "incompetent" or "absent."

Think about it:

- Grantor: You (The living soul).
- Beneficiary: You (The living soul).
- Trustee/Agent: The corporate entity.

But if the Grantor and Beneficiary never show up to claim the interest, the state steps in as the "administrator" of the estate. They take your equity, they use your credit, and then they send you the bill for the "privilege" of them managing your life.

If you want to stop being a "legal vassal" and start being the one in control, you have to move from the status of a "Federal Citizen" to that of a "National" or a "Secured Creditor."

ACTION STEPS: TIME TO WAKE UP

Knowledge is power, but practice is where the results happen. You cannot mix these jurisdictions. If you are claiming relief under legislative statutes, you are admitting you are a subject of that system. You have to know who you are and what rules apply to you.

1. Define Your Status: Are you a resident, a citizen, or a foreign national? Each has different rights and obligations.
2. Verify Standing: Whenever you are challenged, ask: Where is the injury? Who is the injured party?
3. Claim Your Agency: Stop acting as the "responsible party" for the dead entity without claiming your rights as the beneficiary.
4. Educate Yourself: This isn't something you learn in high school. This is the "Law Club" level of operation.

Welcome to the real world. It's time to stop being a ghost in the machine and start being the operator.
