

GPC PROJECT: Global Policy Coherence 2009

To achieve this ambitious project, the Institute for Environmental Security has created an international Expert Group of individuals who enjoy working with the complexities and contradictions of governmental environmental, trade, and financial policies. The expectation is that members of this group will recommend articles for inclusion in the Information Package, contribute via on-line and face-to-face meetings toward the articulation of a strategy for enhanced global climate policy coherence and meet with government officials to assist them in reducing the level of global policy incoherence that affects the negotiation and implementation of the post-2012 climate agreement.
