Life Science Stories

Arctic & Tundra

Story by Andrew Finkle

Earth has a few very cold habitats. It is very hard for plants and animals to live in these areas.

The Arctic and Antarctic areas are at the top and bottom of our world. These areas are called the North and South Poles. They are covered with ice and snow, but it doesn't rain or snow very often. It does not get warm enough to melt all of the ice. Very few plants or animals can live here.

Tundra and Taiga are near the poles. Snow and ice melts for a month or two. Some plants and trees might grow here during those warmer months. Animals that live here have to adapt to live here. They might have extra fat to keep them warm. They might migrate or move when it gets too cold. It is a hard life in these areas.
