Exercise 69

Danyel has discovered the board game Cluedo®.

Danyel:

Mum! I'm really happy. Mark and Demelsa lost. Both of them! And I won!

Elen:

How did you do it, Danyel?

Danyel:

First, I guessed that Miss Scarlett did the murder in the ballroom with the rope. That was completely wrong.

Elen:

And what did you guess next?

Danyel:

Colonel Mustard did the murder in the kitchen with the spanner.

Elen:

Was that right?

Danyel:

No, worse luck. Then I changed just the room. I said that the murder was done in the study. And Mark didn't have any card. Nor did Demelsa. And I didn't either. So that was all correct – and I won!

Elen:

Congratulations! Now remember to thank Demelsa and Mark for teaching you the game.

Exercise 70

Here's Danyel with his thank you's.

Danyel:

Thanks, Demelsa, for playing Cluedo® with me.

Demelsa:

Mum must have told you to say it. Well, you're very polite, so I'll be polite too. Don't mention it, Danyel! Cluedo® is really one of the oldest games, but trying it once again was a lot of laughs.

Danyel:

Mark, thanks to you as well for playing with me.

Mark:

Okay, Danyel. Now it's my turn. I need you to come and finish with me the new layout for the model railway.

Exercise 71

Tübmas and Hecka have gone to eat a salad.

Tübmas:

(to the restaurant's waiter) I want to order a salad.

Hecka:

Me too.

Tübmas:

(to Hecka) And if I order a burger with the salad, perhaps I won't be so hungry this afternoon.

Hecka:

Oh, Tübmas!

Tùbmas:

(to the waiter) If I request a burger, will it have cheese on it?

Waiter:

If you wish, sir. And if you order a burger, you can have chips with it as well.

Hecka:

Tùbmas, no! We had chips yesterday.

Tùbmas:

Okay. Not a single chip, but a burger with cheese on it. And the salad please.

Waiter:

And what kind of dressing on your salad?

Hecka:

Olive oil and vinegar will be fine.

Tùbmas:

If I must eat a salad, I'm inclined to something a bit sweeter. I'll have a generous serving of thousand island dressing.
