President's Message

Doris Stirm and Arnold Goldman, led by Leona Moriarty of our Nominating Committee, are having success in seeking out nominations for our officers and chairpersons, for 2011 through 2012. They are also putting together a long-term plan which will allow me to begin to step down as President after our April elections.

Brian Harvey, was approved by our membership at our February meeting as a voting member of the BAS board and as Chairman of the Awards Committee. Nancy Stirm has agreed to serve as our Hospitality Chairperson, and I will seek approval for her at our March membership meeting. Part of the Nominating Committee's plan has been to seek out people who would like to assist in different areas. At a minimum, we will have assistants in the area of Programs, Awards, Exhibits, and Hospitality. We are also looking for people to assist with the Palette, and for managing our website. This is a great way to get involved in the BAS leadership. If you would like to participate, please talk to Leona, or any other board member. Your interest will be warmly welcomed.

In addition to our regular operational efforts, I am putting together two other temporary groups. One to take a look at our overall plan for BAS, and to assess the potential that we might have for exhibits, programs, workshops, and other community involvement. The other group will review our bylaws and awards rules, and make suggestions to bring our rules up to date with our current practice. Please contact me if you have an interest in becoming a part of one, or both of these efforts.

We are making plans for our annual Spring Show in May, which will possibly include a junior division. Time to start getting those paintings ready!

Recap

In February, John Warner returned to BAS to give us another delightful watercolor demo. John began his art career as a commercial artist, but found that it did not give him pleasure, so he went back to school to get his teaching degree. An accomplished painter in acrylic and oil, John eventually switched to watercolor.

John loves the coast, and spent ten years painting the ocean. He said that watercolors and water go together well, because water is reflective. He especially likes to paint in Hawaii, where he says that the water is "incredible." Also, John prefers to paint wild scenes rather than architecture.

John began his demo by drawing a quick sketch onto a stretched piece of Arches 140 cold press paper that he had previously soaked in a bathtub for 2 minutes. He then taped the paper to a drawing board with a moistened strip of gummed tape, and allowed it to dry for 2-3 hours.

John often works from a photograph, and said, "Don't be a slave to a photograph. Eliminate things you don't want in your painting." John uses blue painter's tape instead of frisket, because he finds that frisket leaves a yellow stain. In John's demo, he used several small, torn pieces of tape in the area where he was planning to paint his trees. "Always leave places in the trees for the birds to fly through," John pronounced with a smile.

When painting the sky, John said that he only adds clouds if there is a lot of sky, and he cautioned us not to spend too much time painting the sky. He said that going over and over the sky not only kills the sky, but also kills the paper.

John frequently uses people to add a little human interest in his paintings; often just as silhouettes in the distance. "If you're not going to do birds, at least do people."

Thank you John, we enjoyed watching you paint, and learning about your tips and techniques.

Art2Art Award

Local artists, Joyce Faulknor and Guy Magalinas, present Dawn Mulliken with a "Publishers' Clearinghouse" type presentation. Dawn was the first to identify the source of Guy's crab apple photo. She won a DVD set, line drawing, and photo of the blossom, all because she was watching Art2Art and was on Facebook at the same time. Look for Art2Art shown each Saturday morning at 9:00 a.m. on KCSM.
