

The Architecture of a Delusional Society

by Pedro Lima

An egoic, narcissistic, prideful, and ignorant society strives to legitimize its delusions, its paranoia, greed, self-serving agendas, and parasitic, soulless intentions and actions. It builds hierarchies designed to control, manipulate, enforce, and dictate. It oppresses, undermines, judges, punishes, and diminishes others through unworthiness, shame, guilt-tripping, fear, and scarcity, attaching self-worth and self-love to petty, mediocre, shallow narratives and cultural illusions.

It speculates, lies, deceives, and manipulates, creating a framework of division, conflict, and competition, willing to win at any cost. Driven by egoic attachments, greed, and the commodification of people, places, and things, it indulges in superficiality and hollow societal metrics of success and power.

It hoards resources at the expense of others, expanding its inner emptiness while justifying indoctrination, secrecy, deception, tyranny, and control through a corrupt, parasitic, false hierarchy, disseminating the illusion of freedom, democracy, order, safety, and superiority, leading to collective compliance, subservience, complacency, codependency, suppression of its individual inner authentic sovereign voices, being submissive to parasitic people and its self-serving corrupt soulless exploitative structures.

This society clings to unworthiness and projects its lack of self-love, self-acceptance, and self-accountability outward.

An egoic, delusional, narcissistic collective survives by constructing identities, roles, titles, institutions, ideologies, beliefs, habits, and dogmas that soothe survival mode and its dependency on external approval, validation to survive enslaved working to pay bills, left with "breadcrumbs", exhausted, enslaved by its own attachments to indoctrinated propaganda, lost in soulless corporate and governmental careers, while a few groups and corporations hoard, control, manipulate and profit from them, exploiting them until they are left with nothing, at the mercy of this soulless, petty "minions".

It worships fame, status, performance, and false authority while perpetuating cycles of fear, instant gratification, ignorance, denial, resistance, and spiritual bypass.

It projects its own lack of courage to grow emotionally and spiritually onto others, hiding its unhealed shadows behind the closed doors of self-victimization and narcissism.

This is the architecture of a society terrified of truth and vulnerability.

This is a system built on the avoidance of accountability.

This is the collective illusion that collapses the moment individuals awaken to the remembrance of their inherent inner authentic sovereignty.

We reap what we have sown.