

Control and the Suppression of Inner Sovereignty

by Pedro Lima

In a corrupt, soulless, narcissistic hierarchical world, societies are ruled by hollow, self-serving oligarchs, greedy, self-proclaimed, entitled “masters” who do not value individuation, sovereignty, or authentic soul self-expression, but rather the reward of an obedient and subservient “herd” collective. “False Authority” that cannot withstand scrutiny.

The dominant frameworks are shaped by indoctrination, designed to normalize obedience, compliance, exploitation, complacency, subservience, and submission of the collective to a false, corrupt hierarchical status quo and false authority figures.

These soulless, parasitic beings seek to sustain and maintain control and domination. They operate as masters of grandiose illusion, fear, deception, manipulation, truth, knowledge, justice, order, weaponizing these constructs for exploitation. They feed on the deep-rooted unworthiness, ignorance, fear, and emotional immaturity of a collective disconnected from its inner knowing, inner compass, and inner wisdom.

These same soulless beings are supported by institutions and corporations aligned with their corrupt, exploitative ideologies, dogmas, and frameworks created to hoard and have control over resources, building hollow, parasitic wealth at the cost of the labor, misery, depletion, and powerlessness of the collective. This collective is conditioned to survive on breadcrumbs, bound by debt, surviving from paycheck to paycheck, passively remaining subservient and codependent on the approval of hollow masters, their loyal “puppet minions.” and systems of domination.

These minions support, collaborate, and cooperate to enforce the system, policing others, coercing, intimidating, and “keeping people in line.” They uphold the system by creating and enforcing mazes of bureaucratic, parasitic laws, norms, and rules disguised as order, justice, and safety, coercing compliance and submission, or else punishment.

These soulless beings and their systems commodify and reduce people, and places to numbers, things, objects to be exploited for profit. They shape the perception of the collective to believe it is free, living in “democracy,” while in truth it is enslaved by hollow masters striving to maintain hollow thrones, sustaining self-serving agendas, curated narratives at every level of a dysfunctional, dehumanized society.

The collective outsources its inner sovereign authority and authentic voice to institutions, corporations, and false authority figures, allowing itself to be defined, measured, and become dependent on the validation and approval of the “masters” who siphon its life force. The result is a population kept stressed, confused, pressed, compliant, comparing, competing, subservient, and submissive to false hierarchies that profit from collective labor and its never ending parasitic taxes.

This is how a collective that is relentlessly lied to, deceived, manipulated, controlled, and exploited becomes complacent, agreeable, docile, and comfortable with indoctrinated illusions. It clings to beliefs, habits, identities, titles, and national narratives, attaching worth and freedom to the approval of others, curated deceptive stories that sustain division, conflict, dependence, ignorance, and fear.

Inner sovereignty, authenticity, and inner-authority are sacrificed in exchange for comfort, conformity, the illusion of safety, and the need to appease or please others.
