

Parasitic Order - How Fear-Based Systems Harvest Human Sovereignty

by Pedro Lima

A society built on indoctrination fosters codependency, obedience, compliance, and subservience, conditioning people to attach their self-worth, dignity, integrity, and identity to distorted, exploitative, dominating, and corrupt systems of control and enslavement.

Fear-based frameworks legitimize false hierarchies and hollow authority figures who govern through scarcity, punishment, manipulation, deception, secrecy, and fear, perpetuating cycles of oppression, ignorance, and illusion.

These corrupt structures reward obedience while cultivating herd mentality, moral grandstanding, and self-righteous savior identities. They claim to protect the nation, the people, or the world, while simultaneously disseminating chaos, conflict, confusion, division, deception, hypocrisy, misery, and fear-based propaganda.

Under the guise of order, safety, comfort, success, and a “nation’s dream,” they suppress inner sovereignty, creativity, independence, inner knowing, and authentic self-expression, harvesting human life force while demanding submission to higher-ranked hierarchies.

The societal status quo curates titles, ranks, roles, laws, norms, rules, and false identities, fragile, fragmented egoic facades dependent on parasitic structures for approval and validation, compensating for unresolved emotional trauma, hollowness, self-conditioning, delusional narratives, and obsessive control attachments.

An empowered, authentic society does not confuse order with the dysfunctional disorder of parasitic, narcissistic, indoctrinated governance, nor does it outsource inner authority to fear-based systems designed to sustain an enslaved, disempowered, soulless, disconnected, and ignorant collective.

These are Three Layers of Societal Conditioning

1. Inner Disconnection (Individual and Collective)

Indoctrination trains people to doubt their inner knowing, abandon self-trust, and seek external permission for worth, safety, and identity, creating codependency at scale.

2. False Authority Replacement

Once inner authority is severed, it is replaced with titles, ranks, laws, roles, norms, national myths, savior narratives, and “greater good” stories. Authority becomes performative rather than authentic, sustained by fear-based empty promises of order, safety, comfort, success, belonging, and acceptance.

3. Energy Harvesting

The parasitic system rewards compliance, punishes independence, sovereign authenticity, and harvests life force, time, creativity, labor, belief, and attention. It sustains itself through scarcity, speculation, confusion, deception, secrecy, fear, and illusion. It is parasitic because it cannot exist without siphoning energy from disconnected people.

This is not primarily about governments. It is about egoic identity structures replacing soul identity, trauma-driven control masquerading as order and safety, and exploitation institutionalized and normalized as “democracy” and “stability.”

False hierarchies are internalized ranking self-serving narratives used to measure worth against others. This is why moral grandstanding emerges, savior curated false identities proliferate.

At its core, this dynamic is sustained by disconnection, fear of vulnerability, and avoidance of self-accountability, clinging to false authority to mask inner fragility and the lack of courage to face their own shortcomings.

Any system that requires submission and the surrender of inner authority to function is not order. It is parasitic, surviving only through obedience, compliance, and subservience, fed by collective self-avoidance, ignorance, codependency, surface-level obsessions, fragmented identity attachments, and fear of the raw truth that would expose the facades sustaining curated roles, titles, self-conditioning stories, and self-betrayal illusions.