

Sacred Alignment Is Not Optional

by Pedro Lima

A narcissistic, parasitic society survives by exploiting those who genuinely and authentically bring substance, pure, soulful substance into the world.

It hides behind fake pages and secrecy, cloaking itself in performative emotions and moral righteously facades, while hypocritically judging from a place of prideful ignorance. Driven by egoic delusions and fear-based projections, it stalks like a hawk, laser-focused on what others are cultivating while feeling entitled to others energies.

This parasitic consciousness freeloading mindset projects, obsesses, and leeches, seeking hosts to siphon life force in order to legitimize its own hollow misery: self-pity, bitterness, envy, jealousy, and deep-rooted unworthiness. It resents anyone who is self-empowered, grounded in honor and integrity, anyone who radiates from their inner, authentic, sovereign, raw soul truth.

When we choose the path of prideful ignorance, we allow ourselves to be consumed by fear-based, lower states of consciousness. These cultivate codependent, exploitative, deceptive, parasitic dynamics, endless cycles of pain, denial, suffering by choice, and karmic repetition.

Inner alignment is not optional. It is a self-responsibility, a sacred duty. Each of us must navigate our lived experiences through honest self-reflection, conscious awareness, discernment, authenticity, and self-accountability for the energies we choose to embody and project in every moment. Discernment matters: what we carry forward, and what we refuse to continue feeding.

This is free will, the power of choice.

We can surrender to fear, pride, ignorance, control, and surface-level egoic attachments: fragile, curated, fragmented identities reinforced by distorted beliefs and societal indoctrination designed to sever our self-worth and inner authority.

Or we can surrender to love, humility, integrity, forgiveness, and the inner wisdom of the soul, diving deep into self-discovery and self-remembrance, alchemizing the energies that bind us to misaligned dynamics, and returning to our true, pure, sacred essence.

No matter our current stage of consciousness, we are accountable for the energies we project.

There are no exemptions.

No victimhood.

No entitlement.

No punishment.

There is no illusion, spiritual or psychological avoidance that absolves us from karmic truth.

Sacred alignment is inherent, and self-responsibility is unavoidable.

Ignorance is a choice while Karmic judgment is not.
