

Soul Declaration of Inner Sovereignty

by Pedro Lima

I do not show up to please, appease, rescue, save, or perform for anyone.

I do not show up for permission, clout, approval, validation, or belonging.

I do not show up to explain, justify, prove, convince, or influence.

I do not show up to soothe egos, complete anyone, or manage anyone's emotions, expectations, beliefs, or projections.

I do not show up to choose sides, curry favor, join clubs, or align with what is popular, comfortable, or herd-approved.

I do not show up for sympathy, antipathy, drama, chaos, trauma-bonding, or unconscious entanglements.

I do not show up to accept responsibility for anyone's intentions, assumptions, fears, behaviors, or inner work.

I do not show up to compromise my inner authority, inner truth, or inner peace by participating in self-deception, self-betrayal, codependency, mediocrity, victimhood, delusional petty hypocritical moral grandiosity, or prideful, curated, fragmented ignorance, sustained by ego-driven identity attachments and dysfunctional unconscious agreements.

I show up from sovereignty, authenticity, truth, and integrity with conscious awareness, in self-respect, self-honor, self-dignity, self-discernment, self-reliance, and self-validation.

Nothing more is required. Nothing less is accepted.

“I show up from inner authority and truth, not from fear, identity conditioning, or unconscious social agreements, and I accept the consequences, both rewards and challenges, of that choice.” - Pedro
