

The Curated Fragmented Illusion of Power in a Parasitic Narcissistic Hollow Society

by Pedro Lima

A parasitic narcissistic society normalizes codependency, obedience, subservience, exploitation, and speculation, then pridefully dares to call it normal, acceptable, and something that shouldn't be questioned or put in check.

It indoctrinates through fear, scarcity, conflict, and division, sustaining false authority by constructing a maze of systems of laws, rules, and norms designed not to support truth, authentic sovereign self-expression, but to bind it to frameworks, ideologies, dogmas, and cultural paradigms.

These structures demand self-betrayal in exchange for survival, obedience in exchange for crumbs, submission in exchange for the illusion of safety, order, security, financing, and identity acceptance.

This hollow system is upheld by corrupt oligarchies, lobbying hollow corporate interests, and so-called "elites", fragile, insecure beings sit on hollow egoic delusional thrones, hiding behind curated greedy corporations that hoard, dominate, and exploit the labor, creativity, and life force of the majority while filling the soulless greedy pockets of a few.

The collective is reduced to numbers. Commodified. Indebted. Disposable.

People are conditioned to worship the very corporations and institutions that exploit them, working from paycheck to paycheck, generating obscene wealth for parasitic entities while being told this is success, this is the way to crystallize hollow power, wealth, and authority. A soulless badge of merit.

A distorted pentacle of hypocritical false egoic power. This system survives by selling the illusion of freedom, democracy, and trust in the hollow system, while enforcing submission through indoctrination, bureaucracy, debt, policy, and psychological moral conditioning.

A few prosper obscenely, while the majority own nothing and clap, comply, work for, cooperate, support, and praise their own enslavement. Belonging is purchased through self-betrayal silence.

Acceptance is bought with self-dilution. Validation is granted only to those who betray their inner compass, their own Soul sovereign, authentic truth, sacred essence.

This is a parasitic hollow society rooted in false hierarchies, superiority, morality, comparison, competition, and domination, one that resolves its inner emptiness through conflict, war, secrecy, deception, and the segregation, coercion, and suppression of those who embody expansion, integrity, sovereignty, and truth.

Rather than take responsibility for its inner void, this hollow society projects, blames, judges, punishes, and externalizes, revealing its profound lack of courage, integrity, and emotional maturity.

This is not order. This is parasitism. Freedom is never on the menu of a parasitic hollow society.

It collapses the moment individuals remember who they truly are beyond curated, fragmented egoic identities and role attachments.
