

How Parasitic People and Systems Feed on Abandoned Inner Sovereignty of a Subservient Herd

by Pedro Lima

A subservient, submissive, self-enslaved, self-sabotaging, self-victimized, codependent society relies on external figures, frameworks, and systems to survive, not to live meaningfully, purposefully honoring their Souls with integrity.

It curates egoic, parasitic attachments. It indulges in pettiness and bitterness to legitimize its lack of self-accountability for its own intentions, emotions, feelings, choices, and decisions.

It projects outward its unresolved fears, traumas, insecurities, and pain.

It blames, gaslights, judges, and demands that people and systems protect and serve it, soothing its prideful, egotistical, curated ignorance and narcissistic, dysfunctional entitled self-serving behaviors.

The herd is obedient.

The herd is compliant.

The herd is complacent.

It submits to the very same people and systems that claim to provide order, safety, security, progress, and justice, while enforcing, coercing, and oppressing that same herd.

The herd surrenders its inner, authentic, sovereign truth and authority to external false authority figures, systems of governance, and oligarchical, self-serving structures of domination and exploitation.

The herd believes it has freedom of choice. It believes that lives in a democracy. It expects to achieve the highest pentacle of an indoctrinated nation, that commodifies people, places, things to survive in a parasitic system where few benefit from the exploitation of the many, where the many has to pay bills, immersing themselves in debt, working hard for greedy hollow profit-driven institutions, and soulless corporations where a few hoard, accumulate wealth while distributing breadcrumbs to the many who are codependent and demand jobs to justify a paycheck for consumerism, surface level attachments, status, where the few present the illusion “carrot” of hierarchy, power to the many, fostering comparison, competition to win at any cost to join the hollow parasitic soulless club of the “elites”.

It believes external parasitic systems will create laws, norms, and policies to ensure its safety and security, order, equity and equality.

But the reality is the opposite. These parasitic hollow societal systems dictate, control, enforce, coerce, exploit, and dominate, diminishing others to sustain the establishment hollow status quo.

The parasitic establishment was never designed to protect, empower, educate or grant freedom. It was designed to control, surveil, extract, enforce, and dominate.

It requires a docile, comfortable, complacent, subservient, and submissive herd, one that lacks discernment, courage, resilience, strength, perseverance, and determination to stand up for itself.

A herd unwilling to take self-responsibility, unwilling to take self-accountability for its intentions, actions, choices, and decisions that are in alignment with its Souls authentic sovereign values.

A herd that relies on the external world for approval, identity, and validation of curated, egoic, fragmented constructs.

Rather than aligning with its inner compass.

Rather than trusting in its inner knowing and inner wisdom.

Rather than choosing through heart–mind coherence.

Rather than living in alignment with the Soul's core values.

Instead, it surrenders and is consciously subservient and submissive to parasitic, oligarchical, hollow self-serving agendas of a few who cling to false authority and the illusion of power over others to legitimize their own lack of self-respect, self-love, self-dignity, self-accountability, self-worth, and self-acceptance in truth, integrity, and authenticity.
