

A Hollow Parasitic Narcissistic Crown Made of Fear Cannot Corrupt A Soul who Self-Remember, Reclaims Its Inner Authority

By Pedro Lima

A narcissistic, parasitic, entitled, hollow society commodifies life itself. It dehumanizes to justify self-serving exploitation and constructs frameworks designed to sustain dependence. Through people, institutions, and corporations, it enforces controlling, manipulative, and enslaving systems of coercion, punishment, surveillance, finance control and individuation suppression, exerting domination while normalizing compliance and subservience as the supposed pathway to order, security, and cultural progress.

Curated regulatory laws, norms, and rules are engineered to legitimize hollow, lobbyist-driven, parasitic people of service to soulless greedy profit-driven institutions and corporations that leech off the labor, creativity and life-force of the many. Dependence on these greedy harvesting parasitic structures becomes normalized. The masses are conditioned into codependence, obedient, compliant, submissive to a corrupt hierarchical false authority framework indoctrinated at every level of society.

This framework exists to legitimize prideful, ignorant, fragile “elites” who accumulate wealth through the extraction of others labor, offering breadcrumbs while sitting on hollow parasitic thrones, hoarding influence and control at any cost.

This is not power.

It is a hollow, fragile, curated, fragmented identity, terrified of insignificance, rooted in deep-seated unworthiness and an insecure false sense of self.

This is not authentic sovereign abundance.

True wealth arises from within a Soul that chooses authenticity over falsity, truth over deception, inner sovereignty over domination, and inner discernment and inner reliance over external dependence and validation. From this vantage point, the mechanics of parasitic systems and their hollow operators become unmistakably clear.

Taxes, fees, debt, paychecks, and subscriptions are demanded by an ignorant, codependent narcissistic society that relies on the external world for survival, belonging, identity, acceptance, and validation of its own surface-level existence.

These parasitic dynamics are normalized within a spiritually impoverished, self-victimized, distorted and dysfunctional society.

Its members clap and strive to climb the ladder of illusion of status while being exploited. They remain comfortable and complacent while generating wealth for fragile, insecure hollow greedy “elites,” consenting to the harvesting of their own life-force.

They survive immersed in debt, from paycheck to paycheck, consuming, working, sleeping, repeating, dressing each day for another performance inside the hollow corporate paradise of illusions.

In this system, self-deception, self-betrayal, and self-abandonment are rewarded. A parasitic bureaucratic oligarchy fosters comparison, competition, and winning at any cost, demanding obedience and loyalty from those it enslaves. The many own nothing, while the few at the top of a corrupt hierarchical “Ponzi” structure of labor, governance, and perceived power own everything.

This is how a delusional society attempts to make sense of rights, regulations, economies, wars, politics, education, order, safety, and progress, relentlessly clinging to self-conditioning illusions of freedom, sovereignty, identity, and democracy.

Bound by illusion after illusion, it remains attached to curated false identities and roles, comfortable in prideful, entitled ignorance. It punishes those who refuse to join the herd that self-victimizes and celebrates misery, mediocrity through complaining, blaming, and gaslighting petty parties.

It segregates, silences, and targets authentic sovereign voices, those who refuse to self-betray for cultural belonging, identity, approval, or acceptance. Those who do not compromise inner peace or inner authority to please or appease others. Those who refuse to bow to hollow parasitic systems seeking to condition sovereignty out of existence.

This system does not enslave because it is strong, or powerful.

It enslaves because too many are conditioned to believe that survival requires self-betrayal and surrendering of their own inner sovereignty.
