

Fragmented by Design - How Fear, False Authority, and Self-Betrayal Replace Self-Accountability

by Pedro Lima

A curated, fragmented, parasitic, narcissistic society does not know freedom, liberation, sovereignty, or true inner authority, because it is built by people and systems that create walls of illusion, demanding obedience, compliance, subservience, and self-betrayal.

In this hollow societal world, hoarding money is worshiped as the highest pentacle of power, wealth, success and status.

Fear, scarcity, unworthiness, greed, and performative false identities become the organizing principles of existence.

Appearance replaces inner substance.

Control replaces presence in authentic truth.

Possession and obsession replaces honest self-reflection.

There is no room for authenticity, integrity, honor, or dignity, only the egoic, self-conditioned hollowness of a society that enslaves itself by clinging to beliefs, habits, ideologies, dogmas, cultural paradigms, and exploitative systems it refuses to question.

This is a society that lacks spiritual integrity and refuses accountability for its own energetic state.

Instead of healing, it projects.

Instead of integrating, it leeches.

Instead of self-responsibility, it parasitizes.

Parasitism is normalized through self-victimization.

Emotional immaturity is rewarded.

Spiritual poverty is institutionalized.

Rather than meeting its own unresolved pain, trauma, and fear with honesty and courage, this society externalizes its chaos, feeding on each other through competition, domination, comparison, and control, clinging to self-preserved egoic constructs and curated false identities.

This is not ignorance by accident.

This is emotional immaturity by choice.

This is a collective refusal to take ownership of the soul's energy and the consequence is a world that survives immersed in deception, chaos, darkness, and exploitation driven by ego.

A society that curates parasitism and labels it as culture, freedom, democracy, and order is delusional, exposed by their own inner emptiness, its own lack of self-sufficiency, and self-accountability for the energies it chooses to embody.
