

Hollow by Design - How Narcissistic Societies Survive on Spiritual Impoverishment

by Pedro Lima

A narcissistic society compulsively categorizes in order to commodify everything and everyone.

It lies, deceives, betrays, manipulates, gaslights, judges, and speculates not as an accident, but as a survival delusional coping egoic strategy.

Parasitism becomes the societal operating system.

Unable to generate inner substance, it feeds on others life force through chaos, drama, deceptive, manipulative, hypocritical moral performances.

It survives through self-victimization, self-pity, and the normalization of self-imposed misery and mediocrity.

Fragile, insecure egos curate identities, roles, titles, and hollow frameworks to mask their inner emptiness and fear of insignificance and irrelevance.

This hollow society does not seek truth, integrity, integration, unity, sovereignty in authenticity, or genuine reciprocity.

It seeks control, dependency on others, and domination while calling it culture, success, safety, progress, or order.

Fear is weaponized. Prideful ignorance is rewarded and institutionalized.

What it cannot embody, it exploits.

What it cannot create, it copies and steals.

What it refuses to heal within, it projects onto others.

This is not unconsciousness.

This is parasitic, mediocre, arrogant entitlement by choice.

This is spiritual immaturity and impoverishment disguised as authority and superiority.

And the greatest threat to this hollow distorted, dysfunctional societal system is not rebellion, but sovereign self-remembrance, because the moment a soul refuses self-betrayal, setting sacred boundaries with anyone who seeks to disrupt its inner authority, sovereignty in authenticity, inner peace, and inner truth, then the parasite has nothing left to feed on, having to sit with the very same energies it was striving to harvest from another Soul.

Nothing changes until self-accountability replaces excuses, integrity replaces fear, guided by a purified heart of a Soul who chose truth over every illusion that demanded our inner voice silence, and consent.