

The Cost of Sustaining Spiritual Impoverishment

by Pedro Lima

The consciousness of a parasitic, narcissistic, delusional society is anchored in surface-level existence, hollow, materialistic, and status-driven.

In this shallow, prideful, arrogant, ignorant, spiritually impoverished society by choice, worth, identity, knowledge, wisdom, joy, creativity, fulfillment, success, and belonging are outsourced, attached to the commodification of people, careers, institutions, titles, places, and things.

Individuals are indoctrinated to learn to self-betray in exchange for being seen, loved, valued, acknowledged, accepted, approved, and validated by the external world.

Rather than cultivating honest self-reflection, self-awareness, self-healing, self-sufficiency, self-sovereignty, self-compassion, forgiveness, patience, responsibility, and accountability for their own inner world, the collective consciously and unconsciously projects outward their own unresolved emotional immaturity.

It finds excuses.

It suppresses emotion.

It self-neglects, self-deceives, and self-sabotages by clinging to egoic, curated, self-preserving, fragmented identities and roles constructed solely to survive within a society that lacks inner substance, authenticity, integrity, dignity, honor, courage, emotional and spiritual maturity.

Instead of shedding curated falsehood, deception, manipulation, speculation, and exploitation, the system obsesses over control and domination to justify emotional immaturity and unresolved attachments to pain, suffering, scarcity, unworthiness, fear of irrelevance and insignificance.

Lacking the discernment to heal and integrate the shadows, it avoids self-confrontation, fearing what would be revealed if the curated fragmented illusion collapsed.

But the truth remains as it is and always will be:

The very chaos projected outward is the same chaos that must be owned inward.

Responsibility for one's soul blueprint energetic sovereignty, growth, integration, and evolution cannot be outsourced.

Higher levels of consciousness are not reached through control, domination, or superiority, but through self-accountability, self-honesty, integrity, and inner coherence.

Where consciousness expands and evolves, conflict, deception, fear, scarcity, war, manipulation, speculation, exploitation, and domination no longer exist.

The current oppressive societal disorder is not an accident.

It is an undeniable energetic reflection of individual and collective choices and decisions.

In a parasitic, enslaving society that surveils, polices, monitors, and controls itself, deceiving, speculating, dominating, and exploiting life force to survive on soulless, hollow, materialistic illusions, those who embody authenticity, inner sovereignty, self-sufficiency, self-validation, self-responsibility, and self-accountability become a threat.

Souls who remember themselves, who refuse to compromise inner authority to appease or please are ostracized, segregated, demonized, gaslighted, undermined, punished and diminished by a docile, obedient, compliant, subservient and submissive herd that chooses dependency, and enslavement over inner sovereignty in authenticity.

But no matter how loudly a codependent collective demands rescue, protection, or solutions from the very parasitic system that exploits it, the truth remains unchanged, undeniable:

No people and no systems are coming to save a herd from its own self-betrayal.

Spiritual alignment is not a choice.

Remaining attached to ignorance and spiritual impoverishment is.

Every choice carries consequences within the human experience of being a spiritual being in form. This does not diminish divinity. It affirms it.

True divinity is revealed through the presence, embodiment of courage, discernment, strength, and wisdom of a soul willing to learn, expand, evolve, integrate, and accept all parts of self without denial or fear.

It is the alchemical transcendence of the illusion of separation, superiority, scarcity, and the fear of irrelevance and insignificance, the very illusions the ego clings to in order to survive in a world obsessed and addicted to disorder, distortion, and dysfunction, while hypocritically calling it a living democracy and where a delusional docile herd believes that it has freedom of choice.

Cultivating prideful arrogant ignorance in a parasitic narcissistic surface level society is never going to fulfill the inner individual and collective hollowness, only will sustain spiritual impoverishment, suffering by choice, and perpetuating karmic lessons until it shifts its perception into inner alignment, heart-mind coherence.

There are no cheat codes in our divine humanness to get us ahead of life or anyone else.

There are only lessons, experiences, opportunities for Soul alchemical growth, expansion, evolution, and ascension, nothing more, nothing less.

Playing the victim role is a choice, choosing conflict to solve our inner turmoil is a choice, intentionally harming, and diminishing others because we cowardly avoid self-reflection, self-healing, self-accountability for our own emotional and spiritual state is a choice.

What goes around, comes around. We always will reap in divine order what we have sown.

Life is not difficult or easy. It is what it is, as it is. The energies that we choose in each moment to embody allow us to expand or remain stagnant, bound to karmic entanglement by choice, self-sabotaging, self-betraying, avoiding taking responsibility for what is going on in our own inner world.
