

The Indoctrinated Illusion of Power in Narcissistic Parasitic Hollow Self-Impoverished Petty Societies

by Pedro Lima

A parasitic, narcissistic, surface-level, self-serving hollow society strives to perpetuate a landscape of conflict, confusion, doubt, drama, chaos, comparing and competing to survive, consumed by spiritual ignorance and spiritual impoverishment, seeking to normalize corruption, lies, deception, propaganda, manipulation, binding symbolism, secrecy, speculation, mass surveillance, control, and dominance over others to harvest others life-force.

Seeks to legitimize and institutionalize parasitism rooted in lack of self-sufficiency, self-reliance, self-validation, self-sovereignty, self-accountability for one's own inner state, rewarding codependency, obedience, compliance and subservience when an individual outsources its inner authority to people and systems who never had, and will never had their best interest at heart.

Exploiting others through labor, fear, scarcity, codependency, obedience, compliance, subservience, and submission to indoctrinated hollow hierarchical false authority figures and their corrupt systems of mediocre, miserable disgovernment, greedy soulless corporate misguidance and autocratic, oligarchical, tyrannical oppressive frameworks disseminated at all levels of society.

A docile herd accepts, agrees, and is connivent, consciously and unconsciously self-abandoning and self-betraying, giving its consent to people and systems to dictate who they are, what they can or can't do, say, or be, and how they should always follow orders, be submissive to someone with a rank, a title, a badge, who presents, speaks, and dresses in a particular way to enforce, coerce, and punish anyone who does not comply, who do not bend, bow, and is grateful for the breadcrumbs, leftovers shared by the hollow "herd masters".

Anyone who is not a good docile, subservient "sheeple," who does not worship the "elites," institutions, who do not choose sides of the hollow liars club created by the so-called "powerful ones," the ones who accumulate, benefit, bask and hoard from others spiritual ignorance, downfall.

The ones who believe that just because they hoard vast amounts of resources, money, and material possessions, it grants them some kind of morally hypocritical, delusional, and hollow superiority.

The ones who, out of terrifying fear of irrelevance and insignificance, deep-seated unresolved unworthiness, emotional and spiritual immaturity, choose to hide behind fear, ignorance, deception, betrayal, pettiness, bitterness and unresolved spiritual hollowness.

Clinging to toxic parasitic beliefs and behaviors that suppress their own lack of courage to honestly self-reflect, take full accountability for their ulterior self-serving hollow intentions, actions, emotions, and choices projected onto others in order to avoid looking inward.

Avoiding the decency, dignity, integrity, and courage required to face themselves, heal, and integrate all aspects of a hollow, fragmented, prideful ignorant and curated false self identity construct that seeks to perpetuate survival parasitic illusions of power and wealth.

Striving to hoard control over others, diminish others, harm others, when in fact it is, by choice, self-inflicting and perpetuating deep-seated self-misery and self-mediocrity in these soulless hollow parasitic beings.

Perpetuating cycles of karmic judgment while, out of their spiritual impoverishment and self-betrayal, striving to dim others light in order to sustain their hollow, delusional, unintegrated, chaotic, and petty, dramatic, curated, fragmented inner darkness attachments.

The architecture of hollow false hierarchical power survives only through obedience, fear, and the silent consent of those who have forgotten their own inner authority.

But the moment a sovereign soul remembers who they truly are, the illusion fractures. No badge, title, rank, institution, or system can command the energy of a being who refuses to self-abandon and self-betray to appease or please anyone.

When enough individuals reclaim their inner discernment, self-responsibility, and uncompromising authenticity, the manipulative parasitic machinery of deception starves.

What once appeared powerful is revealed as fragile curated theater of illusions sustained by compliance and subservience, and in the space where obedience once lived, a new landscape emerges, one built not on domination or fear, but on awakened individual and collective consciousness, self-sovereignty, authenticity, truth, integrity, honor, dignity, genuine reciprocity and acceptance of souls who can no longer be governed by any illusion, but self-regulated, and self-accountable for their own inner state.
