

Spiritual Ignorance and the Harvesting of the Human Spirit in Narcissistic Societies

by Pedro Lima

A narcissistic parasitic hollow spiritually impoverished society survives in spiritual ignorance, clinging to self-conditioning and self-sabotaging petty, bitter, and resentful stories. It holds onto grudges and unforgiveness, consumed by emotional, mental, physical, and spiritual unresolved pain, suffering by choice while dwelling in low-consciousness fear-based self-victimized mental states.

It survives through suppressed and hidden subconscious patterns, acting through egoic curated and fragmented constructs, false identities and stories designed to soothe a fragile, insecure, and terrified ego that projects outward its deep-rooted fear of insignificance and irrelevance.

These self-preserving identities, roles, beliefs, and behaviors keep individuals stuck and defensive, hiding behind hypocritical moral facades that portray strength, superiority, knowledge, or success, all rooted in prideful, entitled delusional ignorance and a deep sense of inner unworthiness.

Individuals present themselves through carefully curated false identities, manipulating, deceiving, and controlling the societal hollow stage to influence and shape the perceptions of others. Over time, the performance becomes so ingrained that the authentic self becomes diluted, suppressed, neglected, and forgotten.

A being that lies, deceives, manipulates, and performs long enough becomes imprisoned by the very identity it created, curated in order to self-preserve, survive.

Energy, time, and effort are invested into sustaining a fragmented hollow identity obsessed with self-preservation, capable of justifying toxic intentions, emotions, and actions projected toward others.

Instead of cultivating awareness, integrity, and courage to confront their own inner chaos, individuals choose scapegoats.

Blaming.

Gossiping.

Gaslighting.

Projecting.

Condemning.

Anything to avoid the inner work required to integrate the fragmented parts of themselves.

Within this narcissistic parasitic societal framework, individuals are gradually stripped of their inherent state of sovereignty:

Self-discernment.

Self-authority.

Self-validation.

Self-sufficiency.

Self-knowing.

Self-love.

Authentic sovereign truth becomes buried beneath layers of cultural and systemic landscape of conditioning, polarization, dependency, subservience, and spiritual impoverishment.

Self-victimization becomes the silent permission psychological structure that allows those positioned at the top of hierarchical systems to harvest the life-force of others.

Through consent.

Through agreement.

Through self-abandonment.

Individuals dim their own authentic inner light to please and appease others, becoming dependent on external systems and false authorities to determine their worth and their ability to survive.

A corrupt parasitic system then thrives through indoctrination, control, oppression, exploitation, and domination, sustained not only by those in power but by the complacency and participation of the majority.

A majority that obeys, complies, and chooses to be submissive.

Bending to puppet masters, false authority figures, and corrupt institutions that form a hollow elite club built on oligarchical deception, greed, control and manipulation.

The same majority that allows itself to be treated as cattle, an ATM machine, a resource to be harvested, something that can be disposable when not necessary.

Serving the will, expectations, and bureaucratic corrupt hollow structures created by the same puppet masters they believe, obey in and follow.

Through this submission, individuals diminish themselves, abandoning and betraying their authentic sovereign self, the self that requires no permission to exist.

A majority that keep playing the victim role: Complaining. Begging. Blaming. Judging. Gossiping.

All while being pressed by parasitic bureaucratic frameworks designed to keep them anxious, confused, divided, indebted, distracted, in conflict and dependent on the system for an identity, belonging, and validation to exist.

Labor becomes survival. Stress becomes normal. Fear becomes the dominant emotional currency.

Attention becomes captured by fear-based narratives disseminated through controlled hollow fake legacy media.

Mass surveillance becomes normalized. Bureaucracy expands. Control tightens, and yet the self-victimized herd demands even more of the same systems that exploit them.

More control.

More laws.

More authority.

More enforcement.

More parasitic binding illusions.

While denying their own active or passive participation in sustaining the very corrupt societal oligarchical parasitic system they complain about and condemn when their expectations are not met.

Remaining attached to low-consciousness energetic frequencies of fear, resentment, bitterness, and victimhood becomes a choice.

But choice does not exempt anyone from karmic law. What we refuse to release becomes mirrored to us through the external world.

Every illusion we cling to blocks the path toward growth, integration, evolution and remembrance.

When we choose suffering through unconscious attachment to victimhood, we simultaneously choose to abandon and betray our authentic self.

We deny ourselves the opportunity to dive deeply into the core of our soul:

Our values.

Our wisdom.

Our inner knowing.

Trusting the guidance of our inner compass. Living with intention grounded in heart-mind coherence. Becoming conscious of the energies we embody and choosing intentionally what we contribute to the world.

Life is neither meant to be easy nor difficult. Life reflects the choices we make.

Integrity, humility, awareness, genuine compassion, empathy, sovereign truth, authenticity, and self-accountability are required for true self-regulation, healing, liberation, and the reclamation of inner authority beyond external dependency.

Ultimately, every human being faces a fundamental choice. To remain attached to the comfort of egoic victimhood, blaming the world while surrendering inner authority to external systems...or to rise into the responsibility of sovereignty, confronting one's inner landscape with honesty, integrating fragmented parts, and reclaiming the authentic power that was never meant to be outsourced.

Our choices define who we become. A victim of circumstance, or a sovereign authentic being who refuses to abandon themselves.
