

The Engine of Polarized Illusion in Spiritually Impoverished, Fear-Driven Societies

by Pedro Lima

A low-consciousness, parasitic, narcissistic, hollow society is ruled, governed, managed, coerced, indoctrinated, enforced, controlled, and dominated by fraudsters, scammers, psychopaths, dishonest, petty, delusional, consciously self-serving hollow beings hiding behind parasitic, insecure, and fragile curated, fragmented survival identities.

Human beings are reduced to a “battery”, an energetic harvesting source, sustained through inner disconnection, spiritual ignorance, spiritual impoverishment, self-sabotaging stories, attachments, and self-conditioning. Curated illusions are clung to in order to justify fear, scarcity, and the deep-rooted avoidance, neglect, and denial of unresolved trauma.

Within this hollow, desolated, narcissistic societal landscape, falseness, lies, deception, manipulation, speculation, exploitation, and domination become the currencies of parasitic control, authority, and power.

Individual and collective perception is shaped and molded by indoctrinated ideologies, dogmas, cultural paradigms, and propaganda, designed to bind, distort, and dictate how others should behave, think, obey, comply, and remain subservient and submissive to appease parasitic expectations, opinions, judgments, and manipulative, petty emotional and psychological self-serving games rooted in narcissistic victimization.

Illusions are carefully rehearsed, plotted in secrecy before the puppet masters present them to a docile and compliant herd. Identities and roles are predefined and carefully curated to keep individuals in line, codependent, performative, and thirsty for money, status, fame, and power, in a desperate attempt to validate a lack of inner substance and a terrifying fear of insignificance and irrelevance.

Masks are worn, fake, inauthentic, performative, made to impress, influence, and extract value from others. Behind them lies manipulation, deception, exploitation, and the accumulation and hoarding of wealth gained through dishonesty, lack of integrity, and truth.

This system is widely agreed upon, consented to, institutionalized, and normalized within a desolated, soulless, low-consciousness fear-driven collective consumed by fear, scarcity, survival conditioning, and polarized egoic attachments to curated beliefs and habits that perpetuate spiritual illiteracy, ignorance, and illusion.

The underlying goal within this hollow, prideful, ignorant, narcissistic societal construct is simple: self-preservation at all costs, maintaining the upper hand, undermining, diminishing, and destroying anyone and anything who poses as a threat to the survival parasitic hollow identity and role construct, extracting as much as possible from others and the planet, and doing anything necessary to survive, while continuously reinforcing moral hypocrisy, inner disconnection, spiritual impoverishment, and lack of inner work.

Self-abandonment and self-betrayal are praised, rewarded, normalized, and celebrated as pathways to belonging, acceptance, visibility, value, love, success, respect, and validation, measured through followers, titles, material possessions, and perceived authority over others.

All of this is driven by fragile, insecure, self-diminishing egoic delusions, curated identities designed to mask inner fragmentation, the suppression and repression of unresolved aspects of self, and the avoidance of honest self-confrontation, accountability, and integration.

In these spiritually impoverished societies, there is a collective lack of honest self-reflection. Victimization is chosen, projection is normalized, scapegoating is justified, gaslighting is weaponized, and judgment replaces avoidance of self-responsibility.

Inner transformation, alchemical consciousness elevation begins when individuals and collectives take full accountability for their inner world, acknowledging, recognizing, processing, and integrating unresolved emotional, psychological, and energetic imprints.

This requires the willingness to observe without distortion, to feel without avoidance, and to develop the discernment to distinguish what is truly one's own from what has been conditioned or imposed upon by society.

It requires the strength to release that anything and anyone that seeks to bind, control, or disrupt inner sovereignty, truth, peace, trust, and self-reliance.

Individual and collective growth, evolution, and expansion unfold when self-responsibility replaces projection, when differences are resolved without war, harm, or diminishment, and when the need to justify identity through ideology, dogma, or cultural conditioning dissolves, thereby stripping away the layers of conditioning and illusion that mirror separation.

Dehumanization thrives in such hollow systems, which attempt to engineer and mechanize the human being into a docile, obedient, compliant, and dependent workforce, stripped of its inherent divinity and kept disconnected from inner authority.

But the reclamation of sovereignty begins within, through self-awareness, self-accountability, self-honesty, integrity, self-trust, self-healing, self-sufficiency, self-validation, self-love, and self-acceptance.

Only then can the parasitic polarized distorted and dysfunctional individual and collective illusion of power collapse, allowing the heart-mind coherence to lead an individual and collective, empowered in authentic sovereign truth, integrity, compassion, genuine collaborative and cooperative relationship dynamics that allow it to learn, adapt, grow, expand, evolve, prosper and thrive in harmony with the cycles of planet earth, whole, one with all that is and always will be.
