

How Parasitic False Curated Hierarchies & Authorities Profit from the Commodification of Humanity

by Pedro Lima

A narcissistic, parasitic, transactional, surface-level societal endemic strives for comfort, convenience, bypassing inner growth by curating attachments to self-conditioning stories, unresolved fears, pains, and trauma, seeking to commodify its humanness by defining, measuring, and categorizing another worth, intrinsic value, adding a price tag, building exploitative, greedy, soulless and dishonest Ponzi indoctrinated frameworks, propaganda, marketing rooted in societal structures of control, coercion, surveillance, punishment, enforcing a maze of bureaucratic, oligarchical parasitic laws disguised as order, safety, and necessary to keep the herd docile, compliant, obedient, subservient, loyal, and submissive to false hierarchies, false authority figures portraying themselves as “leaders”, “visionaries”, “masters of truth, knowledge, and wisdom, middle man entitled hypocrites hiding behind curated, fragmented, falsehood, shallow performative identities, performative shallow, hollow deceptive inauthentic masks that demand out of prideful entitled spiritual ignorance that at an individual and a collective perceive them as a superior being, someone with power because of a title, a rank, sustained by man-made laws, and carefully engineered soulless profit-based, exploitative grandiose parasitic greedy hierarchical institutions, that must be worshipped, obeyed, and compliant with all the daunting hollow self-preserving curated fear-based propaganda, ideologies, dogmas, and cultural identity survival paradigms that require an individual self-abandonment, self-betrayal, and submission to parasitic, corrupt, hollow, engineered false hierarchies, false authority figures that manipulate, deceive, lie, monitor, exploit, scam, speculate, diminish, punish, striving to control and dominate the societal narratives, normalizing dependency of individuals on the approval, validation of a corrupt establishment status quo, where individuals are dependent and subservient to insecure, fragile, soulless parasitic hollow beings who seek to harvest, profit, benefit from collective division, conflict, polarization, financial subservience to corrupt, greedy and parasitic fragmented soulless institutions that accumulate, hoard, benefit, and profit from the Ponzi debt scheme set in place, where few dictate who, how, why, and what others can access resources for survival.

Human standardization, performance, identities, roles, are preconceived, predefined and sustained by indoctrination, so-called education system that is not more than an enslaved playground to teach, train children to express, think, believe, and behave according the needs of parasitic, soulless, profit-hungry corporations, with children being trained to obey, comply with, follow orders without questioning, be subservient and submissive to people and institutions, teaching them to self-abandon, and self-betray, suppressing their own authentic, genuine, spontaneous, and sovereign self-expression truth for the sake to please and appease a narcissistic, parasitic, hollow societal fear-based scarcity driven survival endemic, a desolated societal landscape consumed by their own darkness, self-avoidance, terrifying fear of insignificance and irrelevance that arise from inner child wounds, unresolved emotional trauma, a lack of self-accountability for one’s own inner world state, a surface-level, transactional, commodified humanity that lacks inner substance, and that self-sabotage, self-victimize, seeking to play the victim role, scapegoating their pain, and trauma, normalizing, institutionalizing, legislating the tyrannical, soulless unspoken and spoken rules meant to perpetuate self-conditioning, self-inflicting misery and mediocrity by choice.

A narcissistic, parasitic transactional society built its foundation on fear, scarcity, surface-level egoic attachments, dishonesty, deception, manipulation, exploitation, control, and categorize it hypocritically as order, security, culture, progress, freedom, self-diminishing, and self-dehumanizing by clinging to unquestioned beliefs, thoughts, behaviors, patterns of illusion, polarization, self-deception, self-conditioning stories that soothe their ego's fragile insecurities, rather than confront all the darkness lingering within the unconscious and conscious mind.

Here is what most refuse to confront: nothing about this parasitic, hollow, soulless system has power without your participation, without your agreement to abandon yourself to it. Every time you choose comfort and convenience over truth and growth, external approval over sovereign authenticity, dependence over self-sufficiency, belonging over integrity, you reinforce the very parasitic hollow structure that oppresses and diminishes you.

The moment you see that clearly from within your own self-discernment, self-awareness, self-perception, without distortion, without excuses, without self-deception, without dysfunction, you reach the breaking point. Because self-liberation does not begin when the system changes, it begins the moment you refuse to betray yourself to sustain it.

The moment you reclaim your inner authority, your discernment, your self-respect, self-integrity, self-honor, self-love, and stand in your truth without needing external validation, without seeking permission to exist, there is nothing left in you that can be controlled, manipulated, or harvested, and in that self-realizing moment, the illusion, the polarization does not need to collapse...because you have already stepped beyond it, by embracing the depth of your soul's multidimensionality, remembering who you truly are beyond any layers of illusion, and separation with all that is and always will be.

Life is made of intentions and choices, and because we've got the free will to alchemize in each moment how we respond to what is presented to us, without any egoic self-victimized strings attached.

What we seek outside ourselves, already exists within, and when you stop perpetuating curated, fragmented, conditioning victimized stories, and find in each moment, each experience, each emotion, and each challenge, an opportunity to initiate self-healing, acknowledging, and recognizing all fragments of self, scattered, misaligned, waiting to be seen, integrated, accepted without any judgment, without bypassing any emotions no matter how it makes you feel uncomfortable, and without any label attached to it.

Sit with the energies, allow them to flow through your body, feel them without categorizing them, and release them. It requires the courage and strength to confront any unresolved conscious and unconscious attachments to patterns that bind and keep us stuck in self-victimization.

The current corrupt and soulless hollow narcissistic parasitic societal systems of control are a reflection of what an individual and collective lacks within their inner world. Dependence fosters individual and collective subservience.

External hierarchical systems foster individual and collective compliance and submission. Surface-level attachments foster comparison, competition, division, and conflict.

Ideologies, dogmas, and cultural paradigms curate the cultivation of fragmented identities attachments in an individual and collective level, where individuals defend and fight for the very same parasitic false authority systems that normalize the enforcement, coercion, labor dependency for survival, striving to normalize the need of an external hierarchical system based on superiority, where people with ranks and titles are perceived as more than others, above others, creating a parasitic hollow false sense of categorization of moral and spiritual superiority over others.

All of it arises from deep spiritual impoverishment, deep-rooted conscious and unconscious, unresolved attachments to the fear of vulnerability and self-accountability for one's inner world state, self-integration, self-regulation, self-acceptance, and the embodiment of one's inner substance, true soul essence.
