

The Parasitic Societal Systemic Conditioning of Self-Abandonment and the Path Less Travelled Back to Self-Sovereignty

by Pedro Lima

A narcissistic, parasitic, spiritually impoverished, self-victimized society neglects and avoids, at all costs, self-honest reflection, self-awareness, self-healing, self-accountability, self-integration, self-acceptance, self-love, self-regulation, and self-discernment to cultivate, from within, a harmonious, peaceful, and balanced inner state, regardless of what is reflected to them.

So, it chooses to shut down its heart, curating fragmented egoic, self-preserving survival conditional frameworks, stories, and narratives that legitimize and normalize self-abandonment and self-betrayal to belong, to be defined by curated identity constructs indoctrinated by societal preconceived enslaving conditioning scripts, striving to fit in to be accepted by society, dimming its own sovereign inner light, truth, and genuine authentic self-expression for the sake to please and appease others.

In this hollow, distorted, and dysfunctional surface-level narcissistic society, consumerism, speculation, deception, accumulation, and hoarding of resources are used to control societal systems, where exploitation is normalized, legalized, culturalized, and institutionalized, where a few groups benefit and profit at the cost of the majority's well-being.

The parasitic, hollow, oligarchical, soulless, corrupt societal system of control and dominance creates endless mazes of bureaucratic, parasitic, binding laws, rules, norms, and policies meant to protect, shield, and perpetuate a hollow status quo sustained by obedience, compliance, subservience, dependence, and submission to false hierarchies and false authority figures.

The majority is kept in line, bound by the "puppet masters'" performative hollow words, falsehood rooted in mediatic grandiose narcissistic hollow appearances, curating deceptive and manipulative rehearsal dramas, narratives, propaganda, and stories meant to keep the majority anxious, stressed, and dependent on the "good graces" of the "puppet masters" to protect a fragile, insecure, self-victimized docile herd that holds onto fear, scarcity, unworthiness, and powerlessness, seeking emotional, financial, physical, and mental reliance, protection, safety, order, and justice from the very same people that surveil, monitor, enforce, coerce, censor, punish, speculate, manipulate, exploit, dominate, and diminish, relying upon the parasitic hollow "puppet masters" and their loyal servant "minions'" self-serving agendas that harvest the life-force from a docile, compliant, obedient, and subservient herd, that rather than questioning their own patterns of thought, intention, emotion, action, and choices, confronts unquestioned indoctrinated societal beliefs that have been shaping their perception, keeping them distracted, disconnected, dependent, comparing, competing amongst each other, divided from within, immersed in unresolved chaotic inner states, and that are reflected outward in their reality.

In this hollow, spiritually impoverished societal landscape, individuals outsource their inner authority, self-regulation, self-validation, self-reliance, and self-discernment, surrendering out of fear to external false hierarchies and false authority figures that never had, and never will have, their best interest at heart.

When an individual self-abandons, self-betrays, self-sabotages, and self-deceives to be accepted, to belong, to curate fragmented, self-preserving identity constructs meant to perform and gain leverage, dressing the fake egoic inauthentic mask to impress others, manipulating their way out of self-avoidance, self-neglect, enduring self-denial, and attachment to self-conditioning and self-victimization stories, then they choose to perpetuate a karmic life where they are constantly being reflected back what they lack from within, what they refuse to acknowledge, recognize, heal, alchemize, integrate, and accept within.

But when an individual dives deep within all the layers of conditioning, rediscovers, remembers, and reclaims their inner authority by cultivating self-awareness, patience, self-compassion, self-love, forgiveness, self-accountability, unwavering self-integrity, self-honor, self-dignity, self-validation, self-sufficiency, self-reliance, self-respect, and self-discernment to trust and rely upon their own inner intuitive compass rather than be swayed, influenced, or dependent on external binding parasitic forces that seek to control, dominate, and harvest their life-force through labor, attention, inner disconnection, and addictions to what is perceived as convenient, soothing the egoic polarized world, then individuals become conscious and aware of what is inauthentic, of who and what needs to be released to embody, in presence, self-sovereignty, authentic, genuine, spontaneous, and truthful self-expression, radiating their essence from a state of inner peace, inner balance, and inner harmony grounded in their soul's knowing and wisdom.

Self-liberation and freedom are not granted by anyone or anything externally; they are cultivated, remembered, and embodied from within a sovereign authentic being who does not outsource or compromise their inner authority for the sake of appeasing, pleasing, or soothing another being's egoic, fragile, insecure, projected false sense of self and identity, polarized barriers of the mind survival construct.

In that remembrance, the human journey of ascension is no longer about focusing on how to escape the world, but about embodying the soul within it, fully present, fully aware, fully sovereign, fully authentic, where nothing external defines you, and everything within you becomes the living expression of truth, interconnected with all that is and always will be.
