

Beyond False Authority - Reclaiming Inner Truth in a Parasitic Narcissistic Hierarchical World

by Pedro Lima

A narcissistic, parasitic, self-dysfunctional, self-dysregulated, self-misaligned, and self-victimized society strives for external praise, recognition, approval, acceptance, and validation to perform curated, fragmented, inauthentic identity egoic constructs, rooted in unresolved pain, fear, trauma, prideful ignorance, surface-level attachments, addictions, and obsessions.

In this distorted societal landscape, frameworks of behavior, self-expression, thought, belief, and choice are conditional, with strings attached, bound to spoken and unspoken societal shaming and guilt-tripping ideologies, dogmas, cultural identities, and paradigms that seek to dictate, measure, and punish anyone who steps outside of them.

Anyone who refuses to silence their inner voice, suppress their emotions, or maintain a false sense of peace and sovereignty by pleasing and appeasing others is met with resistance. Meanwhile, within, individuals are consumed by inner chaos because they do not process their emotions in the moment, nor express their truth authentically.

Fakeness, deception, dishonesty, mass surveillance, manipulation, control, exploitation, speculation, corruption, secrecy, gaslighting, and scapegoating are rewarded, praised, institutionalized, legislated, and culturalized through hollow, indoctrinated, oligarchical, parasitic, corrupt, and greedy false propaganda.

Hierarchical societal frameworks are constructed to shape and bind perception, conditioning individuals into self-abandonment and self-betrayal, outsourcing their inner knowing, inner compass, self-regulation, sovereign truth, and inner authority.

Individuals are taught to be submissive, obedient, subservient, and compliant to false authority figures, prideful, ignorant, entitled individuals who, through titles, ranks, and badges, use bureaucratic mazes of laws, norms, and policies to bind, enforce, coerce, deceive, manipulate, exploit, control, and dominate others, perpetuating hypocritical moral facades as the paladins of justice and order.

This perpetuates a parasitic, hollow, narcissistic status quo, where for one to profit, hoard, and accumulate wealth and power, another must remain in poverty, surviving paycheck to paycheck, subservient to the demands of a corrupt, enslaving, abusive system disguised as “democracy”, a delusional parasitic hollow political and religious system that sell “freedom”, where a middleman will come to save the collective from their own self-victimized, scarcity mindsets, from their own curated attachments to self-conditioning stories, fears, trauma and beliefs.

This illusion is normalized through propaganda that enforces taxation, over-regulation, and bureaucracy, ensuring systemic control with the agreement and consent of a complacent, docile, obedient, and subservient collective.

The same system that is trusted, lies, deceives, manipulates information, and justifies its own parasitic surveillance and hollow control, stressing, exploiting, coercing, and diminishing those who fear being targeted, shamed, or punished if they step out of line.

So they continue to self-abandon and self-betray. They remain obedient, compliant, and submissive. They defend and fight for the very systems that exploit and profit from them.

They follow and worship corporations and institutions that monopolize resources, keeping them dependent on paychecks, pensions, and debt to survive. They compare, compete, and climb hollow corporate ladders of illusion, hoping one day their value will be recognized, dimming their inner light to please ranks, titles, and false authority figures for a seat at the table of this Ponzi hierarchical, hollow, and soulless corporate system.

Mediocrity, scarcity, poverty, and self-inflicted misery become normalized globally, disseminated by false authorities who glorify and normalize exploitation, labeling hollow, parasitic individuals and corporations as “successful,” “intelligent,” and “worthy of replication”, crystalizing greedy self-serving profit-based lobbying and corrupt dynamics, seeking to sell the perception that profiting from “cheap labor” is normal in a hollow spiritually impoverished human commodified greedy world driven by parasitism.

A dishonest, distorted corporate hollow framework becomes culturalized.

Behind the scenes, soulless, petty, fragile, and insecure individuals orchestrate the “circus”, plotting, planning, and rehearsing global narratives of division, conflict, deception, and engineered scarcity to maintain control and power over others.

They keep a spiritually impoverished society numb, distracted, compliant, and dependent, attached to a curated, fragmented identity, external validation, and permission to exist from the very corrupt, parasitic, oligarchical hollow system that diminishes them.

A collective that fears standing in truth chooses to play small. Chooses the victim role. Chooses submission to external hierarchies over self-sovereignty.

Trusting, defending, and supporting the very corrupt, deceptive forces that exploit them, all through individual and collective agreement and consent.

The path out is not external; it is an inner return. A conscious decision to no longer abandon yourself for acceptance, no longer betray your truth for belonging, and no longer silence your voice to maintain illusions.

It begins with radical self-honesty, with the courage to face your inner world without distortion, to process what arises without avoidance, and to reclaim your self-regulation, your discernment, and your inner authority.

It is a disciplined and self-committed devotion to integrity, honor, truth, authenticity, and dignity, choosing inner alignment over dependence on external approval, inner truth over comfortable attachments to what is familiar, and self-sovereignty over submission to external authority figures.

You set boundaries without guilt. You stand in your inner intuitive compass core values without compromising them. You walk your authentic path without seeking permission.

Through this unwavering journey of self-discovery, self-commitment, and self-determination, you remember: your power was never outside of you, and a being who honors their inner authentic sovereign truth cannot be controlled, diminished, or defined by any system that demands their inner disconnection and self-betrayal to belong and be accepted.

In that remembrance, beyond all layers of conditioning, fear, and illusion, you recognize that you were never the identity you were taught to perform, you are the awareness behind it, the sovereign essence that cannot be programmed, owned, or diminished, the living alchemical presence that transmutes illusion into truth simply by choosing to be fully, consciously, and authentically you.
