

The Hollow Throne, Petty Liars Club, and the Collapse of False Curated Fragmented Power

By Pedro Lima

The insecure, fragile, curated, conniving liars, petty hollow throne club socializes to align, plot, rehearse, manipulate, and engineer corrupt, soulless, parasitic societal pre-conceived hollow scripts.

They manufacture conflict, division, scarcity, and centralization, seeking mass surveillance and psychological and emotional control to sustain false power, false hierarchy, and false authority.

Their hierarchical systems require a docile, compliant, obedient, subservient collective that continues to self-abandon, self-betray, and place trust in the hollow words and intentions of those who seek to define, censor, measure, profit from, control, oppress, and dominate them.

They dictate who people should be. What they should think. How they should live. What they should fear. What they should obey. Who they should believe, follow, and obey.

Through oligarchical corrupt structures and institutionalized manipulation, individuals are conditioned to accept exploitation as normal. They are taught to survive on “breadcrumbs,” dependent on paychecks, titles, debt, and external permission to exist, while a small group basks in greed, privilege, and the illusion of superiority, and separation from others.

Labor exploitation becomes normalized. Parasitic taxation without genuine reciprocity and accountability becomes normalized, legalized, and institutionalized.

Psychological and emotional coercion becomes normalized. Mass distraction becomes normalized.

All of it is reinforced through indoctrinating propaganda, lobbying, conniving manipulation, speculation, deception, and carefully rehearsed self-serving narratives disseminated across political, financial, military, corporate, educational, judicial, and media systems.

The collective is kept pressed, stressed, distracted, emotionally reactive, and inwardly disconnected while performative puppet masters maintain the illusion of order, safety, and control.

Around them orbit the loyal subservient “minions” who defend the very systems that diminish them, believing that their titles, badges, affiliations, careers, or memberships will protect them from any karmic consequences, whether they believe in it or not.

They cling to the illusion that proximity to false hierarchical power grants them immunity.

But the so-called “elite” hiding behind secrecy, perceived surface-level wealth, institutional influence, and curated authority are not powerful; they are deeply fragmented, insecure beings attached to hollow self-preserving curated egoic identities built on fear, greed, emotional and psychological fragility, and the illusion of having control over others.

Their oligarchical parasitic hollow societal systems survive only through collective agreement, consent, and unconscious participation.

These parasitic, bitter, insecure, hollow, soulless beings believe occult allegiances, secrecy, manipulation, and institutional self-preserving curated legislation will grant them protection, will shield them from the consequences of their intentions and actions.

But clinging to prideful, delusional, fragmented ignorance is a choice. Reaping what one has sown is not.

Their self-serving petty attachments to money, status, bunkers, titles, badges, curated performative reputations, and hollow thrones will not grant them karmic immunity.

No man-made system, no legal protection, no propaganda machine, and no collective narrative can override the deeper laws governing consciousness and energetic consequence.

Truth always exposes what was built in secrecy.

What is engineered in deception collapses beneath the weight of its own distortion and dysfunction; it is inevitable.

This is the part that the hollow throne petty liars' "elites" club refuses to confront: every intention, every manipulation, every act of coercion, exploitation, deception, and interference upon another being's free will carries consequences beyond any human institution or societal framework.

No title. No wealth. No political influence. No corporate power. No religious justification. No curated public image. None of it overrides karmic law.

One may deceive the public. One may manipulate perception. One may temporarily escape human accountability. But no being escapes the energetic imprint created through their own intentions, actions, and choices.

The Universe does not negotiate with entitlement, prideful ignorance, attachments, self-serving rationalizations, self-victimization, petty and bitter curated excuses, or curated moral hypocrisy.

Every being is accountable for the energies they embody, cultivate, and impose upon others.

To consciously manipulate, suppress, exploit, deceive, or condition another soul for personal gain is to bind oneself to the very distortion projected outward.

All structures built through corruption, domination, exploitation, fear, scarcity, profit-driven, and falsehood will inevitably collapse under the weight of their own imbalance.

Because divine order is not governed by societal status, institutional power, financial dominance, or hollow, curated, distorted false authority.

It is governed by cause and effect, and every seed planted through consciousness inevitably returns to its source in divine order.

We will always reap what we have sown, regardless of whether we believe in it or not.