DOWELL MAUSOLEUM

The Dowell Mausoleum is located within the nave of Tulsk Abbey, abutting the west wall of the tower house and the south wall of the church. The walls consist of rubble and mortar and the structure is roofed with thick slate.

Two names are associated with the founding of Tulsk Abbey in 1448 – The Annals of Ireland say it was Felim O'Connor while Dominican sources state it was Felim MacDowell. The fact the mausoleum is located inside the Abbey indicates a close association with the Dowell family who lived at Mantua, Elphin.

Over two hundred years later, Felix Dowell entered the Dominicans and was ordained a priest in Spain. He joined the army of James II as a chaplain in 1689. Luke Dowell, probably his brother, was a colonel in James' army. Felix was captured at the Battle of Boyle, imprisoned, escaped to England, re-arrested and expelled to Spain. He attempted to return to Ireland but was captured and died in Newgate Prison, Dublin in 1707.

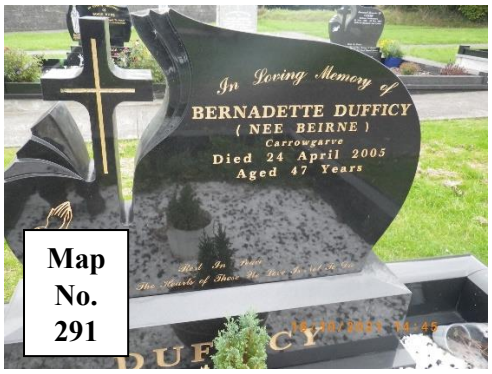

The mausoleum's headline inscription reads:

PRAY FOR THE SOUL OF COL. LUKE DOWELL AND HIS FAMILY

The remainder of the inscription is not decipherable.

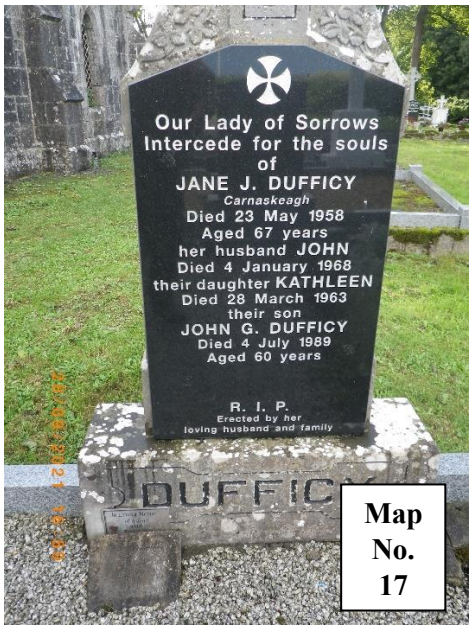

Mary, the daughter of Luke Dowell (1702-1756) and grandson of Col. Luke, married Oliver Grace of Gracefield, Co. Laois. Their descendants are interred in the Grace Mausoleum in Tulsk Cemetery.

GRACE MAUSOLEUM

MANTUA HOUSE – THE GRACE HOME

GRACE COAT OF ARMS

4 TRANSLATIONS OF

On John Dowell Grace, of Mantua-House, second son of the 2d Oliver Grace, of Gracefield; and on his wife, Mary Hussey, of Ardimore.

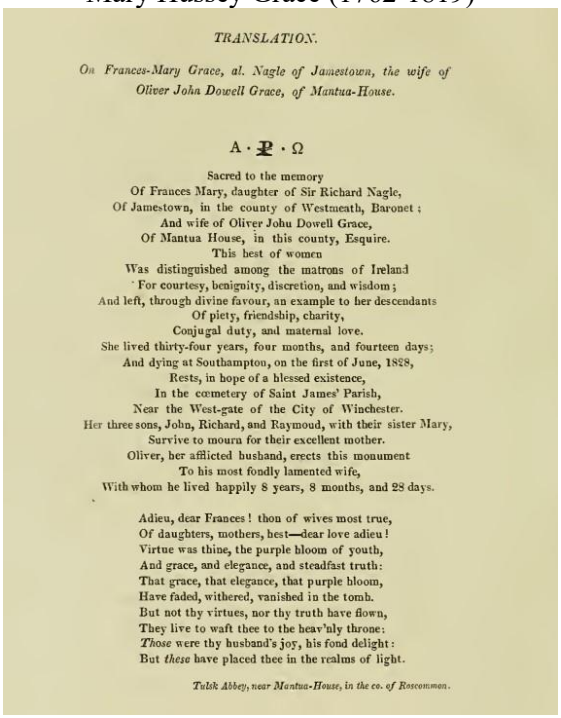

A • Ꝑ • Ω*

Sacred to the ashes and the memory
Of John Dowell Grace, of Mantua, in this county,
The youngest son of Oliver Grace, of Gracefield,
In the Queen's County.
Who, devoted in his youth to arms,
Acquired much honor, under the Austrian generals,
While commanding a corps in the Wirtemberg dragoons,
In the German and Turkish wars:
He was moderate in prosperity, and not dejected in adversity,
Was kind towards his associates, faithful towards his friends,
Of a most sweet disposition:
He lived 75 years;
And, exhausted by a lingering illness, but unconquered in mind,
He died
On the 25th day of April, in the year of Christ, 1811;
And lies buried in this sepulchre,
Together with his most beloved and most virtuous wife,
Mary, the daughter and co-heir of
Patrick Hussey, of Ardimore, in the county of Kerry,
Who died on the 7th day of November, in the year of Christ, 1819,
Aged 57 years.
Oliver, their only son,
Erected this marble to his most excellent parents, A.C. 1820.
Hail, ye pious spirits! may ye repose together in peace!

Tulsk-Abbey, co. of Roscommon.

* To Christ, the Alpha and the Omega, the beginning and the end.

John Dowell Grace (1736-1811
Mary Hussey Grace (1762-1819)

TRANSLATION.

On Frances-Mary Grace, al. Nagle of Jamestown, the wife of Oliver John Dowell Grace, of Mantua-House.

A · Ꝑ · Ω

Sacred to the memory
Of Frances Mary, daughter of Sir Richard Nagle,
Of Jamestown, in the county of Westmeath, Baronet;
And wife of Oliver John Dowell Grace,
Of Mantua House, in this county, Esquire.
This best of women
Was distinguished among the matrons of Ireland
For courtesy, benignity, discretion, and wisdom;
And left, through divine favour, an example to her descendants
Of piety, friendship, charity,
Conjugal duty, and maternal love.
She lived thirty-four years, four months, and fourteen days;
And dying at Southampton, on the first of June, 1828,
Rests, in hope of a blessed existence,
In the cœmetery of Saint James' Parish,
Near the West-gate of the City of Winchester.
Her three sons, John, Richard, and Raymond, with their sister Mary,
Survive to mourn for their excellent mother.
Oliver, her afflicted husband, erects this monument
To his most fondly lamented wife,
With whom he lived happily 8 years, 8 months, and 28 days.

Adieu, dear Frances! thou of wives most true,
Of daughters, mothers, best—dear love adieu!
Virtue was thine, the purple bloom of youth,
And grace, and elegance, and steadfast truth:
That grace, that elegance, that purple bloom,
Have faded, withered, vanished in the tomb.
But not thy virtues, nor thy truth have flown,
They live to waft thee to the heav'nly throne:
Those were thy husband's joy, his fond delight:
But these have placed thee in the realms of light.

Tulsk Abbey, near Mantua-House, in the co. of Roscommon.

Frances Mary Grace (née Nugent) (1784-1828)

Oliver John Dowell Grace, husband of Frances, was interred here in January 1871. Also interred was Oliver's son, Richard J. Grace, who died in May 1864 and Richard's widow, Barbara Eleanor (née Taaffe), who died in March 1868.

TAAFFE MAUSOLEUM

The Taaffe mausoleum is located just outside the west end of the Tulsk Abbey nave. The exact date of its construction is unknown but most likely in the mid 19th century. The walls were built with rubble masonry and faced with mortar. It is surrounded by an iron railing. Gothic crosses are atop each rail and winged cherub heads are on the four corners. The entrance door is made of iron with the Taaffe name shown in relief.

TAAFFE MAUSOLEUM ENTRANCE

The Taaffe family came to live at Foxboro Clooneyquinn through the marriage of Christopher Taaffe (1736-1819) to Maria French of Clooneyquinn in 1765. Their great-grandson, Patrick Taaffe (1840-1915) was the last family member to reside in Foxboro. Financial problems forced him to sell the house in 1897 and the land reverted to the Franch family after his death.
