

My body belongs to me

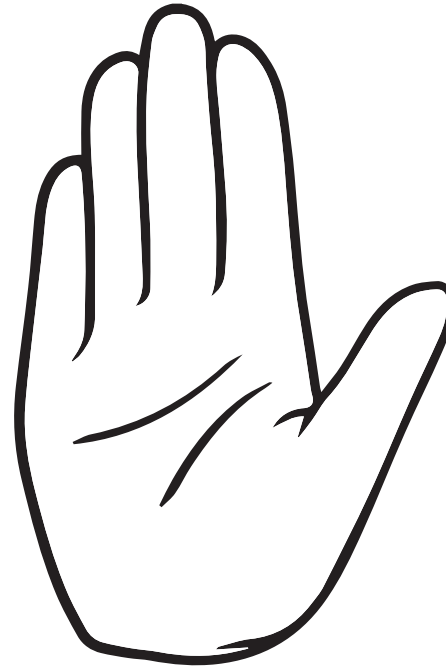

My body is my own.
I decide who comes close to me.

I should always tell an adult I trust if I ever feel uncomfortable.

Strangers should never touch me.

NO

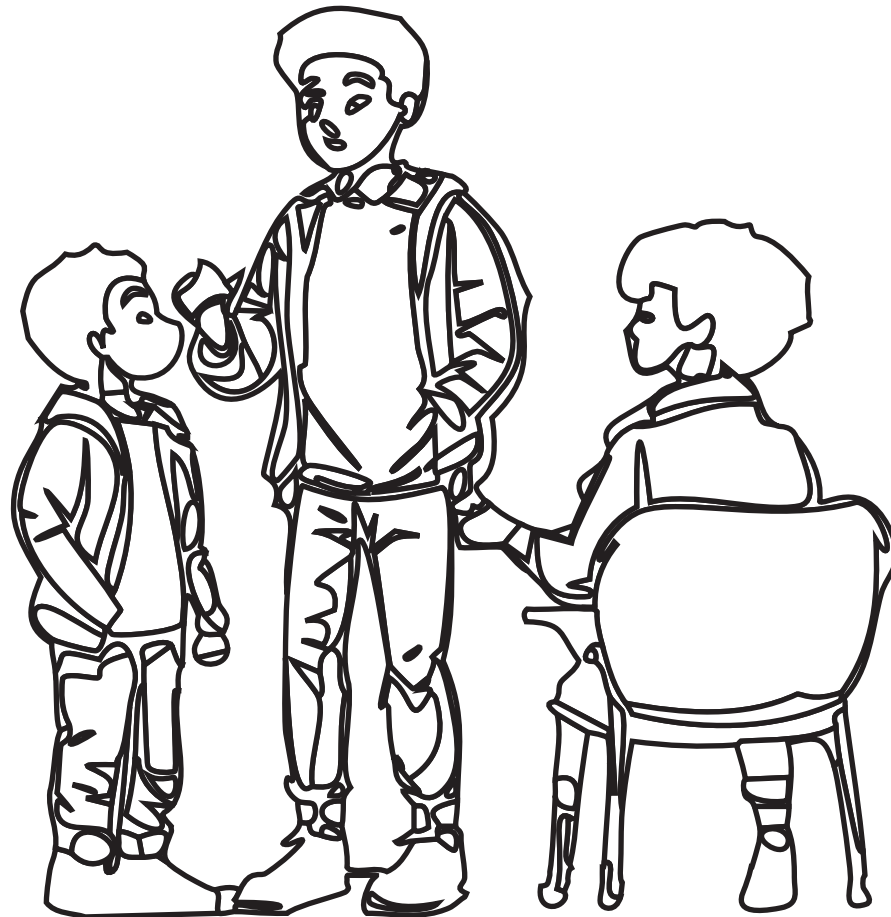

I am allowed to say NO to a person that makes me feel uncomfortable.

Personal space is like an invisible bubble around our bodies. Everyone has their own bubble. If someone comes too close and makes me feel funny or uncomfortable, I can say "no" and ask them to give me some space.

I should tell somebody if a person makes me do anything that makes me feel uncomfortable.

This coloring book, provided by RPS Security, is intended as an educational resource to empower children with knowledge about personal safety. The content is designed to teach children about the importance of personal space, understanding the dangers of strangers, and recognising inappropriate touches.

Important Points to Note:

Parental Guidance: While the coloring book serves as a valuable tool, parents and guardians are encouraged to review the material with their children. This allows for further discussion, clarification, and reinforcement of the safety concepts presented.

Age Appropriateness: The content is created with the intention of being age-appropriate; however, it is recommended that parents or guardians assess whether the material aligns with the maturity level of their children.

Open Communication: The coloring book is a starting point for conversations about personal safety. Parents are encouraged to openly communicate with their children, answering any questions that may arise during or after the coloring activity.

Professional Guidance: In instances where parents or guardians identify a need for further guidance on discussing personal safety with children, seeking advice from child psychologists, educators, or relevant professionals is recommended.

Not a Substitute for Vigilance: While the coloring book offers valuable lessons, it is not a substitute for parental vigilance. Parents and guardians are reminded to maintain an ongoing dialogue with their children about personal safety and to foster an environment where children feel comfortable discussing any concerns.

Individual Experiences: Children may respond differently to the content based on their individual experiences and sensitivities. Care should be taken to approach the material in a manner that is considerate of each child's unique perspective.

By using this coloring book, parents and guardians acknowledge that RPS Security is providing this resource in good faith with the aim of promoting children's safety awareness. It is our collective responsibility to create an environment where children feel empowered and equipped to recognize and respond to potential risks.
