Thoughts and Feelings

“Penfold and Mossop had just had their breakfast and were ready for the day. Their humans had been busy packing bags since they woke up. The house was bustling with busyness. Mama was running between the kitchen and the living room searching through bags and checking items from her list. She hummed as she worked and patted Penfold on the head when she passed him. Mossop saw his food bowl being packed and at least seven days’ worth of food. Papa was bringing large duffle bags down from upstairs and loading them into the car. He kept looking at his watch and sighing.”
