The Narcissus Bulbocodium Conspicuous, often referred to as the Yellow Hoop Petticoat, is a hardy and excellent naturaliser known for its attractive funnel-shaped, deep-yellow flowers. This daffodil variety is particularly useful in rockery displays due to its free-flowing blooms. It is a holder of the RHS Award of Garden Merit, making it a reliable and hardy choice for naturalising effortlessly. The flowers can last up to a month, especially in cooler weather, and the plant reaches a height of 20cm with 6/7cm bulbs supplied. It is easy to grow, requiring only minimal time to plant, and prefers sunny spots and well-drained soil.
