

INDIGENOUS COUNTRY AND BIODIVERSITY ALLIANCE

Who is ICBA?

ICBA is an alliance of Indigenous organisations working together to make sure our culture, knowledge and ways of looking after Country are at the forefront of nature markets in Australia.

ICBA's role?

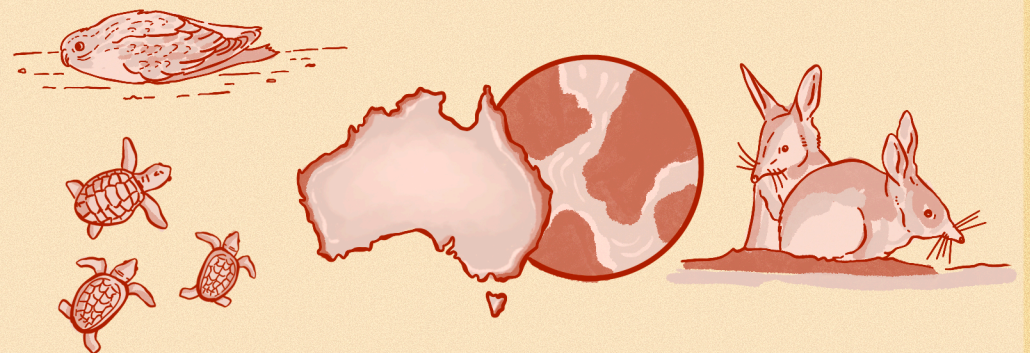

The Australian Government is setting up a new Nature Repair Market to pay for work that benefits the environment. ICBA wants to bring Indigenous people together to make sure we are part of this from the start, so that we can be recognised for living, working and practicing culture on Country.

Why it is important to be involved?

Indigenous values and knowledge are essential to caring for Country and delivering effective environmental outcomes.

Australia cannot meet its biodiversity and climate goals without us.

Sustainable livelihoods support strong communities and healthy Country.

We are building a future where Indigenous voices are not optional - they are essential.

NATURE REPAIR MARKET

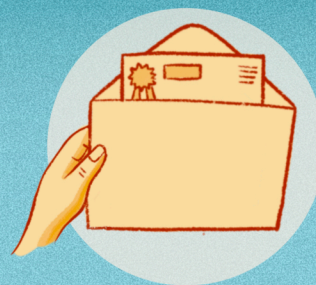

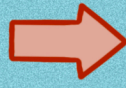

How the Nature Repair Market works

Do projects to look after Country

Get a Biodiversity Certificate for good environmental and cultural outcomes

Sell the Certificate on the Nature Repair Market

Spend the income on more projects on Country

Pilot projects

ICBA is working with Indigenous groups around the country to support Nature Repair Market pilot projects that protect our lands, waters, animals, plants and culture, and use our knowledge to care for Country.

Each pilot project will look at:

- What's important on Country (like sacred sites, bush foods, animals)
- What's putting it at risk
- What we can do to keep it strong into the future

These projects will test Indigenous-led ways of measuring how well we're looking after Country, so others can learn from the methods and do it on their Country under the Nature Repair Market Scheme.
